CIRCLING the CIRCLE

—It is claimed that there are 1,000,000 drug users in the United States.

—A coil spring, 400 feet long, which required one mile of wire, was turned out in a factory recently.

—"Zylophone," with the "y" sounded long as in "dye" is the preferred pronunciation of the word xylophone.

—Lou Gehrig, of New York, and Joe Sewell, of Cleveland, were the only two American League baseball players who played in all their teams' games last season.

—Metals, under which heading a variety of articles are listed, was the principal item in the exports to Canada from the United States the value being $270,107,886 in 1927.

—Postal receipts at 50 selected cities for January, 1928, totaled $30,579,429.89 as compared with $30,394,024.30 for January, 1927, an increase of $185,405.59.

—Well, we had a little touch of winter Saturday and over the week-end after all. But if February goes, can spring be far behind?

—H. G. Griner, Circleville, has been appointed resident district deputy highway director for Pickaway county, by George F. Schlesinger, state highway director, who has announced appointments all over the state.

—Circleville motorists are complaining about the long time they must wait on the traffic lights to change in the city. They are timed too long and traffic might be speeded up a little if the city desires, making it better all around.

—Gerald Hanley reports that several dozen eggs in a car which skidded and was badly wrecked at the overhead bridge near Columbus were unbroken. Eggs-actly. That's what usually happens in an accident. The minor things escape.

—Everett Brown, teamster, who resides on Haywood street, desires that attention be called to the fact that he is not the Everett Brown who was arrested last week on a liquor charge. The man arrested is from Denver, Ross county, and is held in connection with a raid last December at New Holland.

—The grand opera at Columbus this week is attracting a lot of Circleville people. But we can't see anything grand about an over-fed creature bellowing loudly and throwing her voice with many an "A-a-ah!" into such contortions that we can not hear what she is singing. We wouldn't trade one grand old song for all the opera they're going to have this week.

—Circleville and Pickaway county American Legion veterans will attend the Central Ohio district Legionnaire meeting to be held in the Armory at London, Ohio, on March 18. This is the annual convention day. The district meeting will draw votes from the following counties: Pickaway, Ross, Madison, Franklin, Knox, Marion, Morrow, Union, Licking, Fairfield.

Seven Boys' Teams Eliminated From Tournament

HARD BATTLES PREDICTED FOR FINAL ROUNDS

Monroe and Walnut Expected to Clash For County Title Honors For Girls.

By CARL F. DOEBLER
With seven boys' teams eliminated from the Pickaway county basketball tournament in the first week, Atlanta, New Holland, Walnut, Williamsport, Pickaway and Ashville remain to scrap for honors this week-end. Pickaway meets Williamsport in the first game Thursday night. Each team has a win to her credit over the other, and the game promises to be a battle. Pickaway has been handicapped by injuries to Capt. Smith and Forward Enoch. Smith received a fractured wrist in a recent game, while Enoch has a sprained ankle.

The winner of the game must meet the rejuvenated Ashville team, and McGlone and Cloud are going to be hard to stop. Should they win here they go into the finals. It seems at present that Ashville has the edge and many expect her to go through.

Favor New Holland
Walnut must meet the strong New Holland team Thursday night. New Holland should win, but must display a better brand of ball than with Jackson. Atlanta and New Holland then meet in the semi-finals, and we have two types of teams meeting. New Holland has a large team, and Atlanta a small but decidedly fast group. Whether the smaller, faster group can win from the larger one is a matter of conjecture. A good game with plenty of thrills and action is expected, and we are giving New Holland the edge.

With only Walnut, Monroe, Pickaway, Ashville and Muhlenberg in the running in the girls games, we have the five best teams of the county meeting. Walnut plays Muhlenberg in the semi-finals and should win. Monroe plays Ashville and should come through although Barch and Strader are bound to cause them trouble.

Pickaway must then meet the winners in the semi-finals. This game should cause Monroe some little trouble for ceremonies. Pickaway has several good guards and forwards. Monroe is, however, conceded the edge, and should meet Walnut in the finals. This will be a battle royal. Monroe has won from Walnut this year, and has a more experienced team. The score will be close, the game hard fought, and we should see a good game, as well played as any we have watched for sometime.

Atlanta Girls Lose
In the first game on Saturday afternoon Pickaway and Atlanta took the floor. Atlanta girls started in with a passing attack that bewildered the Black and Gold girls. As a result, Farmer was able to locate the basket for the first points of the game. Hinton was fouled and made good one point, later added a field goal as the first quarter ended with Pickaway 3, Atlanta 2. In the second quarter, Atlanta's guards let Anderson and Hinton add one basket each to the score. H. Anderson, McKenzie and Hampshire, Pickaway guards held Atlanta's team scoreless in the last three quarters of the game. Captain L. Hoskins and her sister M. Hoskins played a fast guarding game and held the Pickaway score. Hinton, Pickaway forward, was easily the star of the game, making ten of her teams' 13 points.

Ashville Girls Win
Washington girls were easily defeated 2 to 6 by the larger Ashville squad. Barch sisters, Hay, and Strader, led the attack the second half that carried the smaller Washington guards off their feet. Dorothy Davis played best for Washington, while Agnes Frazier was able to make most of the points. The Davis to Davis combination did not work as well as usual as G. Davis was closely guarded. This was Washington's first attempt at the tournament.

Leroy Reeser Leaves To Face Murder Charge

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 20—(INS)—Leroy Reeser, 29, Circleville, O., alleged slayer of Mrs. Lucy Leahy, Birmingham, Ala., waived extradition here and was enroute to that city today according to police. Identification of Reeser, according to police was made by Detective Marvin Garner, Birmingham.

Reeser with a companion who registered as Paul Sheridan, 35, Columbus, was arrested last Tuesday at Waynesville, O., where they were said to have been surprised while rifling the office of a doctor. Dental gold, platinum and narcotics are said to have been found in possession of the men when they were searched.

OLD RUMOR TO BE PROBED BY SENATE GROUP

Walsh Wants to Know Amount of Money Harry Sinclair Paid to Republicans.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20—(INS)—The five-year-old rumor that Harry F. Sinclair, the lesser of Teapot Dome, turned over several hundred thousand dollars in liberty bonds to pay off debts of the Republican National committee in the 1920 campaign, will be investigated this week at the senate oil inquiry.

Sinclair has testified he gave "about $27,000" to the Republicans but the rumor has persisted that he made much larger and other contributions through his friends and business associates. Thus far but one of these gifts has been traced, a $75,000 offer of liberty bonds used to pay off a Republican debt with the Empire Trust company, of New York.

The senate public Lands committee will meet again Thursday and officers of four great banking institutions have been subpoenaed. The banks named were the Continental and Commercial National of Chicago, the Chase National and Liberty National of New York, and the First National of Boston. The subpoenas ordered officers of the banks to bring along all their records relating to loans made to the Republican National committee.

Senator Thomas J. Walsh (D), of Montana, the senate's famous "oil prosecutor," ordered the subpoenas issued after receiving some private information. It was reported, as a result, that Walsh had learned these banks loaned money to the Republican National committee in the 1920 campaign, which was later repaid through liberty bonds.

New York's "Four Hundred" Is Now "Forty Thousand"

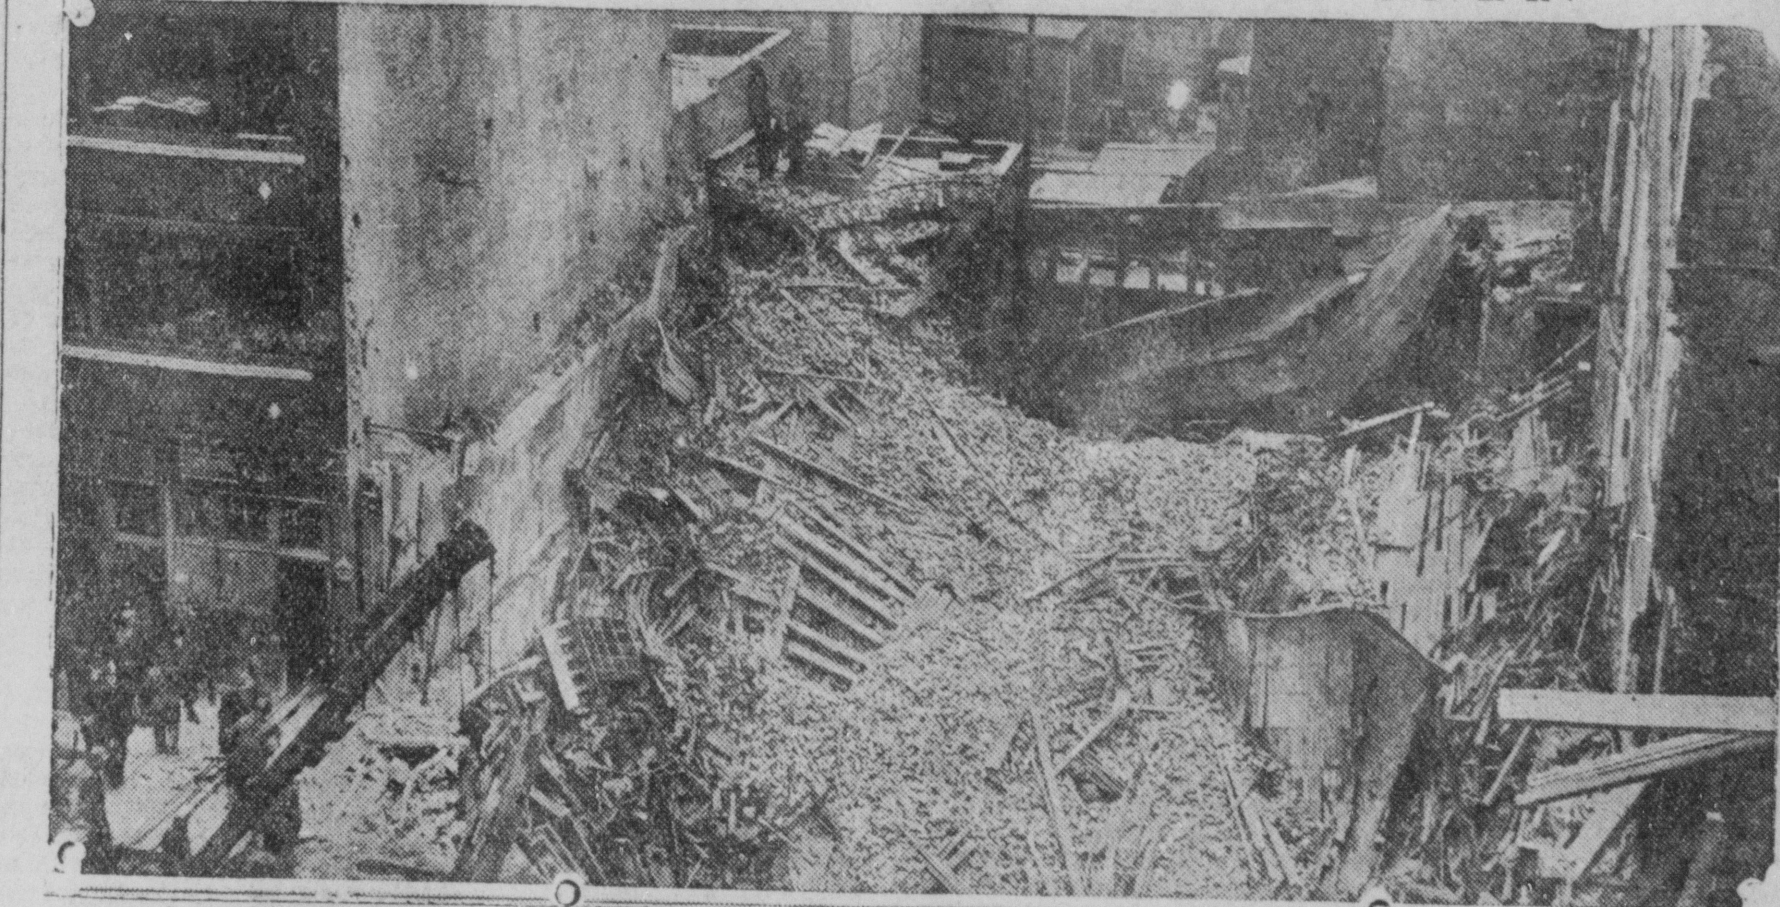

NEW YORK, Feb. 20—(INS)—The "four hundred," as the elite of New York society once were termed, is now the "forty thousand."

The current issue of "Club members of New York," a semi-official index of Gotham's bluebloods, containing the names of more than 40,000 members of 45 "smart" clubs in the metropolitan area. The book reveals that the city's "champion clubmen" are General Cornelius Vanderbilt, Harry Payne Whitney and Clarence H. Mackey. Each is a member of sixteen clubs. J. P. Morgan has membership in fourteen.

FIRE LOSS IS $70,000

KENIA, O., Feb. 20—(INS)—Telephone and electric light circuits were being repaired here today after a Sabbath day fire which brought damage estimated at $70,000.

STILL SEEKING VICTIMS OF SUBWAY CAVE-IN

Workers are combing through the ruins of two three-story buildings that crashed with a thundering roar into a New York city subway excavation, seeking the bodies of other victims of the accident, in which it is known that two men were killed outright. The complete ruin of the houses is evidenced by a glance at the picture, showing how they were literally "smashed to firewood."

Further Decrease In Prices Of Food Made In January

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20—(INS)—The retail cost of food decreased in price slightly, about one-half of one per cent during January. A decrease of more than 2½ per cent since January, 1927, and an increase of 58 per cent since January, 1913, the department of labor announced today.

Fresh eggs showed the largest decrease in January, amounting to 6 per cent. Fourteen other food articles dropped in price, including pork chops, 5 per cent; bacon, lard, flour and oranges, 2 per cent; butter, oleomargarine, rice, canned tomatoes, prunes and bananas, 1 per cent.

Of the sixteen articles that increased in price, cabbage topped the list at 11 per cent.

SELECTION OF DELEGATES IS NOW GOING ON

Four States Begin This Week to Choose Representatives at Conventions.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20—(UP)—With one Democratic candidate stumping the country and five Republicans vigorously in the field for battle, actual work is beginning for selection of delegates to the June nominating conventions. In four states—Illinois, North Dakota, Ohio and New Hampshire—machinery is being set under way this week to nominate the men who will choose the presidential candidates or both parties at Kansas City and Houston.

District delegates are required to file in Illinois today and in Ohio and New Hampshire Friday. In North Dakota Tuesday men are to be named for a state convention which will select the delegation.

Legal difficulties have arisen in Illinois which may prevent holding of the Illinois primary April 10. Candidates were supposed to have filed there Feb. 10, but the petitions were not formally made public because of injunction proceedings.

While this first selection work is being done, there is marked activity on all fronts, with prospects of a highly important political week.

EDITOR'S FATHER DIES

TOLEDO, O., Feb. 20—(INS)—Funeral arrangements were being made here today for J. S. Patterson, 82, father of Grover Patterson, Ohio columnist and editor of the Toledo Blade. He died yesterday after a long illness.

ASHVILLE MAN TO REPRESENT THIS DISTRICT

County Committee Chairmen at Logan Designate Other Democrat Delegates.

James M. Borrer, of Ashville, and M. A. Daugherty, of Lancaster, were designated delegates to the Democratic national convention at Houston, Tex., from the Eleventh Ohio district at a meeting of county central committee chairmen at Logan, on Saturday.

Alternates endorsed are Miss Maude Watterson, of Logan, and Robert Polin, of Chillicothe. The meeting, which was called by State Central Committeeman Henderson, was attended from Pickaway county by Attorney I. F. Snyder, of Circleville, who carried the proxy of Dr. A. L. Stump, of Derby, the county chairman, who was confined to his home by illness.

The other counties represented at the meeting were Ross, Hocking, Fairfield and Perry.

BODY BROUGHT TO HOME OF BROTHER

Mrs. J. F. Fausnaugh Dies at Residence in Jamestown—Funeral to Be Monday.

Mrs. J. F. Fausnaugh died Saturday morning at 2:15 o'clock at her home in Jamestown. She was born Sept. 18, 1882, the daughter of Jacob Martin and Susanna Young. She is survived by three children at homes, Mary, Lester and Mabel.

The body was brought to the home of her brother, Benton Fausnaugh in Stoutsville on Monday morning at 8 o'clock.

The funeral in charge of H. E. Defenbaugh, funeral director, will be held in the Lutheran Church of Stoutsville at 2 p. m. Monday, with Rev. J. M. Wenrich, preaching the funeral sermon. Burial will be in Maple Hill cemetery at Stoutsville.

BULLET IN BRAIN; LIVES 11 MONTHS

URBANA, O., Feb. 20—(INS)—After living 11 months with a bullet lodged in her brain, Mrs. Bessie Gillespie, 38, of Columbus, died here today at the home of her parents. She had been unconscious for the past week.

Mrs. Gillespie was shot accidentally March 28, 1927, by her husband, according to police reports, while he was cleaning a pistol in their home. The injury left her paralyzed, though conscious.

Last Monday the big surprise of the season was handed the people of Pickaway county and vicinity and it was read with more than ordinary interest. Much favorable comment was heard and many are the inquiries regarding the many different phases of The Herald and Union Herald's Big Salesmanship Campaign heard on every hand. Who are to be the live candidates is the big question right now, but that many live and energetic men and woman will enroll in the big race is assured.

NORTHERN OHIO SWEEP BY STORM

CLEVELAND, O., Feb. 20—(INS)—Cleveland and northern Ohio today were in the grip of a cold wave, with the mercury hovering close to zero.

Four deaths here were attributed to the near-blizzard, two from exposure and two from traffic.

Fire department officials said there were more fire companies out at one period during the last 36 hours than at any time in the last thirteen years. Three extra-alarm fires, fanned by high winds and causing property damage of approximately $55,000 were recorded.

LAWYERS MAKE CLOSING PLEAS BEFORE COURT

Murder Trial of Colored Defendant Reaches Its Final Stages.

Holding the deliberate pace that has marked its entire course, the trial of Walter Brown, also known as James Flint, colored, Monday went into the 11th day of its existence and moved slowly through its concluding phases. He is charged with first degree murder in connection with the fatal shooting of John Henry Hill on Nov. 14, 1927.

The case will not reach the jury until Tuesday morning as all of Monday was being devoted to the arguments of the opposing counsel before the jurors.

Friday afternoon's witnesses testified chiefly in rebuttal for the state and added but little to the huge mass of evidence that has been presented during the trial. There was no court Saturday.

Arguments Start
The presentation of testimony and evidence concluded, the arguments of counsel started at 10 o'clock Monday morning when Prosecutor E. A. Brown made the opening review of the state's case for the jurors. He was followed by Thomas Jenick, one of the defense lawyers, who reviewed the circumstances of the events leading up to the killing from the defense standpoint.

The arguments were preceded by Judge Clarence Curtin giving the jury five special charges covering the law concerning alibis and the testimony of character witnesses. Snyder Continues
Monday afternoon, Attorney Irvin F. Snyder continued the defense argument and he was followed by Judge J. N. Abernethy, who spoke for the state in rebuttal. The prosecution and the defense were each allowed a total of three hours for argument.

Tuesday morning each side will be given two minutes in which to make a closing statement to the jurors; Judge Curtin will make his final charges and then the jury will retire to determine the fate of Walter Brown.

OSCAR NEWMAN IS CLAIMED BY HEART ATTACK

Former Supreme Court Judge And Native of Portsmouth Dies Suddenly.

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 20—(UP) Oscar W. Newman, former justice of the Ohio Supreme Court, died suddenly from heart disease at the Columbus Athletic club last night.

Newman became ill shortly after eating dinner and summoned Dr. Charles E. Turner, a friend, to treat him. The former justice died while the physician was enroute to the club.

Newman was a son of the late George O. Newman, Portsmouth, O., lawyer. He was a graduate of Kenyon college, and was elected to the supreme court bench in 1912. He was defeated for reelection in 1918.

Mrs. Newman was visiting their daughter, Mrs. Paul Kellogg, in Champaign, Ill., when Newman died.

Funeral arrangements were held in abeyance pending her return.

2 LOSE LIVES IN TRACTION WRECK

ELYRIA, O., Feb. 20—(UP)—An inquiry was begun here today into the cause of a head-on collision between a Cleveland Southwestern passenger traction car and a baggage car which resulted in the death of two persons and the injury of five others.

The wreck occurred at Stop 84 near the Elyria Country Club. Those killed were Walter S. Hoppe, 35, Elyria, motorman of the passenger car, and Mrs. J. W. Fowler, 35, of Oberlin, O.

LINDBERGH TO FLY OVER MAIL ROUTE

ST. LOUIS, MO., Feb. 20—(UP)—A milestone in the progress of the United States air-mail service was reached today with the scheduled flight of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh over his old St. Louis-to-Chicago route.

Upwards of 100,000 separate pieces of mail—a record-making consignment aboard six planes here and at Springfield and Peoria, Ill., as a tribute to "slim" Lindbergh's temporary return to the service. The good-will ambassador will personally fly a new travel-air whirl-wind air-mail plane delivered here yesterday, but during the flight to Chicago he is expected to change ships to "give the Lindbergh touch" to each piece of mail.

HICKMAN TRIAL STARTS

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 20—(INS)—Taking of testimony in the trial of William Edward Hickman and his former accomplice, Welby Hunt, on charges of murdering C. Ivy Johns, was expected to begin today, following announcement by Hickman's attorneys that the present tentative jury is acceptable to them.

FINAL SESSION IS STARTED AT CUBAN CAPITAL

Peace and Amity Mark Pan-American Meeting Despite Differences.

HAVANA, Feb. 20 — (INS) — With the United States delegation highly pleased with the results, among which are included four positive important achievements of the conference as a whole, the sixth Pan-American conference embarked upon its final session today.

Although some bitterness on the part of several Latin-American states was obvious and expected, the conference began its last day with peace and amity as definite, tangible evidence of its sessions which, during the course of the gathering, have surged from routine dullness to meetings surcharged with fiery oratory and diplomatic brilliance.

The question of intervention, regarded from the outset as a fire-charger with fuse split, has been shelved for further discussion.

Among other less conspicuous but highly important achievements of the conference, these four stood out today as paramount:

1. The declaration of obligatory arbitration and the agreement to meet in Washington for the negotiation of a general treaty.
2. The adoption of a Pan-American aviation treaty.

3. The great strengthening of the Pan-American union by putting it on a firm basis as a non-political agency of continental solidarity.

4. Important steps forward in the codification of international law.

The plenary session today was expected to ratify the projects on arbitration and the Pan-American union.

MEMORY

Tis the aged that enjoy the thoughts that memory brings—

Yes—old age is surely the golden time—
Memory takes us back to the joys we used to know.
We see the poppy fields and orange trees in bloom.
We see the pine covered mountains capped with snow—

Again we hear the ocean's waves beating upon the rocks
We watch the graceful Gulls that circle round in flocks—
We see the young folk in the surf, while we enjoy the shore.
Memory carries us back to the happy days of yore—

We enjoy the simple things that memory brings—
A note of music at summer's eve—or a bird that sings—
An old-fashioned flower-like mother or, or some trifling thing.
A child's merry laugh—or a wee lad with kite and string.

We love the happy twilight hour when heart with heart delights to blend.
The fireside—this happy bower—
A cheery book and the wife—our life long friend.—ANON.

commissions will be given on April 14, absolutely free to ambitious citizens of this section of the country it will be quickly seen that it is indeed the long-looked for golden opportunity of a lifetime. It's the biggest thing that ever happened to Pickaway and adjoining counties. In order to share richly in the awards to be given it is but necessary that those interested devote but a little of their spare time to the work of selling subscriptions to the Herald and Union Herald, a very pleasant occupation at all times. Just stop and ponder for an instant the magnitude of the proposition. A $1,375 Buick Sedan, a $730 Chevrolet, and other costly prizes are to be handed out freely to six hustlers in this community. It surely is worth the effort of the busiest and most ambitious people in the country. The best thing about the whole proposition is that if you work throughout the whole campaign and then fail for a prize, you will be paid a commission of ten percent on all you collect on subscriptions. This makes it a sure thing proposition and one that you can not fail to make good on.

Credits are given for every subscription to The Herald and Union Herald. Get subscriptions anywhere; both renewals and new subscriptions count. Get a receipt book, go to your people and sell them a subscription. That is all the information necessary in order to win.

When considering entering the big campaign, keep in mind one thing. This is not a "chance" proposition, but a strictly business proposition in the highest sense of the word, a business offer that every up-to-date business man in Circleville and other points will heartily endorse. The winner of the Buick Sedan will make an average of $165 per week for the length of time the campaign lasts. Not a half bad proposition, is it? Few business men anywhere in the moderate lines will average that money for the first few weeks. Here is a real proposition and one that no one can afford to let pass.

An Explanation
The question has been asked if regular correspondents to the Herald or Union Herald would be eligible to enter the prize campaign. We wish to state that Rule No. 3, which states that no salaried employee of the Circleville Publishing Co., or close relative of the same, will be allowed to participate, applies only to employees of the Herald or Union Herald working in or about the office. Therefore, any regular correspondent is perfectly eligible to enter and participate as a candidate.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

May Lose $24,000,000

Doris Duke, 15-year-old daughter of the late James B. Duke, tobacco king, may have $24,000,000 sliced off her fortune because a Newark, N. J., court has awarded that sum to George D. Haskell, Boston engineer, in a suit against the estate. Doris, the richest girl in the world, may even lose $24,000,000 if Haskell succeeds in getting triple damages. However, she'll still have enough to get by on, as her total fortune is $150,000,000.

HORSE AND MULE ON PRICE UPSWING

Fewer Colts Being Foaled and Demand May Soon Overtake Supply, Forecast

Horses and mules are disappearing from Ohio farms at a greater rate than from the farms of the nation as a whole, according to the Rural Economics Department of the Ohio State University. Taking the United States as a whole, the number of horses and mules on farms on January 1, 1928, was 20.3 per cent less than on January 1, 1920, while in Ohio the decrease had been 31.8 per cent in the same period.

Prices for horses and mules, the rural economists point out, have been unusually low for the past eight years, but on January 1 of this year were 5 per cent above those of January 1, 1927, in the United States, and 6 per cent above the Ohio price of the year previous.

"Since the war," says a statement from the department, "demand for work animals has materially decreased, and the increased breeding caused by high prices from 1910 to 1915 has left an oversupply. Automobiles, trucks and tractors have taken the place of many horses and there is a ten-mechanical power for horse power both in town and on the farms."

"However, during the past three years, only about half as many colts have been foaled annually as in 1919. The number foaled has been about enough to maintain 11 million horses and mules, which is little more than half as many as we had on the farms in the United States on January 1, 1928."

"Apparently, demand for work animals is about to overtake the supply. If the increase in the prices of horses and mules experienced during the close of 1927, continues in 1928, we will probably see rising prices again. Since 1911 these prices have been in the longest decline since the Civil War."

Smarter. More Dashing Than Ever..with Special Sport Equipment

The Landau Sedan with Sport Equipment, $1975.

Six massive, oversize tires on six trim wire wheels. A couple of "spares" cradled smartly forward alongside the sweeping hood. A trunk rack behind to hold luggage enough for a week-end trip or a summer's tour... and the All-American Six is jaunty, more dashing than ever before... Style... Beauty... Swank. An air of sleekness, snap and drive. An appearance that reflects its smooth and silent flow of power. A certain poise and assurance that result from All-American principles of design and Fisher body craftsmanship... Add to this distinctive exterior the extra measure of rakishness... the ultra-smartness that sport equipment provides at slight extra cost. The result is a degree of custom modishness never before offered in any car approaching the All-American Six in price.

PRICES: 2-door Sedan, $1045; Landau Coupe, $1045; Sport Roadster, $1075; 4-door Sedan, $1145; Cabriolet, $1155; Landau Sedan, $1265.

Over-Idealized Husbands Are Apt to Go Philandering

CLINGING VINES SAP STRENGTH OF OAKS

Men Who Get Nothing But Adulation From Their Wives Often Go Afieid to Seek the Saucy Flapper.

By DR. LOUIS E. BISCH

LOVE changes a woman in many ways. Or, perhaps, one had better say that love brings out woman's inherent and natural traits more fully than any other experience.

Among the most pronounced of these hidden traits is the desire to be a "clinging vine." I know there are women who would deny the truth of this statement hotly. They would claim that not all women, by any manner of means, possess the innate desire to bend to man's will and be subservient to him.

Is it not a fact, nevertheless, that the woman in love really likes to look up to, and respect, her beloved?

Has any marriage ever been successful where the woman was the acknowledged superior of the man? By successful I do not mean escape from the divorce court. By successful I mean specifically a love match in which the outpouring and satisfaction of feminine emotion is possible to the fullest extent.

Was there ever a feminine woman who, deep down in her heart, did not want to be proud of her unquestionably superior male partner? Yet, in this very tendency to be subservient lies danger.

Wives should bear in mind that, although the protective instinct of man is a tremendous incentive in making him do and dare in her behalf, too much gentleness weakens instead of strengthens his desires.

A little of the clinging-vine attitude flatters the male and swells his opinion of himself. And such a little is good for him, for it gives him confidence and makes him bold and self-assured to fight life's battles in behalf of his beloved.

But, like an appetizing stimulant, too much gentleness weakens the very easily become too much. Then the clinging vine becomes a cloying doormat wife.

Man requires stimulus, but he also requires rebuffs. In fact, his rebuffs are the greatest of all stimuli.

The best diet contains a certain amount of roughage. In like manner man needs a degree of roughness in his emotional diet.

The perpetual clinging type of woman, who always "Yes John" him, who always sympathizes, who always listens and follows and never opposes, who forever looks up to her husband as though he were also flawless and faultless, soon bores him to extinction. Women who are forever sweet and kind and good get on his nerves.

So often one hears of these perpetually model wives losing their husbands. They complain bitterly because they have played the game honestly and squarely. They cannot understand how some "silly, little flapper" could have seduced and tricked the man, without the aid of any known possessed a first-rate logical, reasoning mind.

Desire for variety. The urge to conquer, to do more, to acquire, to excel, to lead. These are the usual motivating factors when men stray.

Clings some of the time, but don't forever stick fast. Don't suffer the developing and growing power of the man around whom you have entwined your arms as well as your love.

Every sensible man knows his own shortcomings and to find himself continually overidealized makes him continually aware of his partner's good sense.

Companionship, a dash of coquetry, a dash of interest, variety—these form an emotional cocktail that never wears a man. He likes to be challenged, to be tested, to be won. He wants to feel he has earned it and that there is at least some justification for the woman of his choice clinging to him.

It is a mistake to make a man feel that he could not get rid of his clinging vine even with a hatchet.

The Hairpin Returns

By Fanny Darrell.

WITH what paeans of thanksgiving was the hairpin relegated to regions now inhabited by the Devil! Locks became free and untrammelled and were exposed to the playful winds to be tossed about in graceful disarray. Mildly breathed a sigh of relief as she carelessly shook her short curls to the kisses of the gentle breeze. But dame fashion is as fickle as the winds. The little hairpin was not to be entirely suppressed. It is gradually reinstating itself in my lady's favor. Again, one may see it adorning the lovely hair of the beautiful maidens. Indeed it is becoming a very decorative as well as useful accessory to my lady's toilette.

Food, Headaches and Air Are Related

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

PERHAPS there is no ailment so common as a headache. Never a day passes but some friend or acquaintance will say, "I have a terrible headache." There are very few persons in the world who do not have an occasional headache.

There are many causes for headache. Perhaps the chief ones are indigestion in diet and late hours. Of course, there are other causes—eye-strain, over fatigue and failure of elimination.

The lesson everybody should learn is how to eat and what to eat. To eat regularly, to eat simple food, and not to eat between meals, are pieces of advice which it should be unnecessary to give to sane and sensible people. But, it is hardly worth while to give this advice because the temptation of appetite is too strong for the average person. The advice is always well received and invariably agreed to, but it is straightway forgotten or disregarded.

A little while ago I asked a charming lady what she thought was the cause of her headache. Her reply was that in order to get plumper she has been eating richer food. Upon hearing this answer I looked at her critically and made up my mind that she was not breathing deeply enough and the system was not getting sufficient oxygen to take care of this added food.

There is an intimate relationship between the intake of food and the necessity for oxygen. You can see why this is so. The fire in the furnace will not burn without air, just as it won't burn without oxygen.

Why should you expect the fuel of the body, which is the food we take, to burn or oxidize, as we call it, unless there is an ample supply of oxygen? Deep breathing and regularity in the intake of air should accompany the eating of increased quantities of food.

My fine young friend must expect to have her system burdened and possibly considerably disturbed if she materially increased her intake of food without, at the same time, giving herself an extra supply of pure air.

Today I have dealt with but one sort of headache. On another occasion we will discuss other forms. I do want to say this in conclusion, however, that you should not disregard a headache which persists, or a headache which occurs every two or three days. There is some underlying cause for this headache and it should be discovered.

I have no desire to alarm you, of course, but don't permit yourself to suffer with headache when by a little attention you can avoid it.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble
TUESDAY FEBRUARY 21.

No man can place a limit on thy strength.

—Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

A day of vast opportunity and enterprise is presaged by the lunar aspect as well as mutual aspects. There is an important change or journey and these may be marvellously related to excellent advantage. In business, employment and in social and personal contacts all should thrive, but be on guard against fraud or misrepresentation.

Those whose birthday it is have an excellent year ahead, with some unexpected openings and changes—this in business as well as personal affairs. But care is necessary against fraud or subtlety. A child born on this day may have many talents and qualifications for success and progress. With a pleasant and prosperous life, but it should be alert to treachery and subtlety in all affairs.

DAUGHTER'S IN LOVE WITH THE WRONG BOY

Mother Is Distracted Over Mary's Choice of a Husband But Time Only Will Tell Who's Right.

By WINIFRED BLACK

MARY'S in love with the wrong boy, and her mother doesn't know what on earth to do about it.

So she's going to the fortune-teller—a regular old-fashioned fortune-teller, with a shawl and a handkerchief around her head and a deck of dirty cards and everything.

After that she's going to the crystal gazer—and when the crystal gazer has told her what to do, she's going to the Swami—and ask him. The Swami is a Hindu, very tall and very slim, and very dark, and he loves to tell well-to-do middle-aged ladies what to do—and what not to do. He loves to get them to thinking about Nirvana and the everlasting peace and all the rest of it.

When she's been to the Swami she's going to a seance and ask spirits what to do. After that she's going to a Christian Science practitioner and get some treatments, present and absent. Then she's going to a clergyman who knows and tell him all about Mary and the wrong young man.

By that time she'll write to her favorite newspaper and ask the editor of the Sunshine column. And when she gets to the Sunshine column Mary will probably have married the wrong young man, and mother will be asking all kinds of people what to do about the first baby.

Mother's mother was a pioneer, way out West—just think of it! She married the wrong boy, too—only in the end he turned out to be the right boy, but he was poor and his father wasn't much of anything. He took Mary's grandmother and put her in a covered wagon and they said good-bye to everybody. Away they went, out across the plains and over the mountains to California.

They faced the Indians together, and the desert, the drought, the storms, hunger and cold, and loneliness, and great poverty—these things they met together hand in hand.

Mary's grandmother had one of her children in the prairie wagon out on the plains. She had no physician and no nurse and no fortune-teller to tell her what to do.

And she got through all right.

The next child was born in a little shanty built in a deep gulch in the high mountains, and she had no nurse and no doctor then. But when her next child arrived she had a fine doctor and a marvelous nurse and the baby died. It took her two or three years to get well again herself.

When she was quite an old woman, she heard her first daughter talking about "advice" from this one and "help" from that one, and she laughed.

What a nation of advice-givers and advice-takers we are, we Americans! Aren't there any of us left who can think out things for ourselves? Isn't there any such thing as common sense and self-reliance left in our part of the world?

I wonder.

Helpful Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE: I am a girl eighteen years old and have just gotten through school. I have been going with a boy for about one year and a half. He wants me to marry him, but I think I am too young and could not be contented. Is this because I do not love him? Please, advise me what to do.

BLUE EYES: I agree, my dear, you are too young to be considering such an important step. Whether your hesitation is due to your youth or uncertainty of your love is something I cannot determine for you. I would advise you to wait a while and tell him you are sure of yourself. Why not have a talk with your father and explain the uncertainty of your attitude; tell him that you feel you need more time to make your decision and do not, while there is any doubt in your mind, consent to marry.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE: I am a girl in my late teens and I am in love with a boy two years my senior. I have gone with him for two years and we are engaged. Recently I dated another boy and he has not spoken to me since. I think I am wrong. Should I apologize to him or wait for him to come to me? TROUBLED.

TROUBLED: Since you are in the wrong, it is your place to apologize and I am surprised that you have delayed so long in doing this. I advise you to tell him you are sorry and tell him the matter over frankly that you may avoid any future misunderstanding on the same score.

Before she knew it he was standing before Mrs. Whippoorwill who was all crunched down on the ground.

What Doris asked was the trouble was, both Mr. and Mrs. Whippoorwill laughed merrily.

"I was just covering my eggs, my dear," she replied. She raised herself from the ground and there in a pile of leaves rested two mottled eggs. "Gracious, doesn't Daddy Whippoorwill make you a nest?" asked the astonished Doris. "I thought all birds laid their eggs in nests."

"Most birds do," replied Mrs. Whippoorwill, "but we don't find it necessary. At that I think I'm better off than my neighbor, Mrs. Cowbird. She doesn't lay her eggs in nests."

"Well, I'll say you're better than she is, I'll say that," replied Doris. "We do take care of our own children, don't we?"

Just then Doris heard Mama calling and bidding her new friends good-bye she hurried on home.

GOOD-NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

DORIS was rather late leaving Grandma Brown's house and before she reached the edge of the woods, the sun went down behind the hills, leaving the meadows dusky.

Something stirred at her feet and in the gathering darkness Doris spied a weird-looking bird sitting in the grass.

"Well, Mr. Hoot Owl," said Doris softly, "the fellow at her feet certainly did look like an owl in the darkness. Don't be afraid, I wouldn't harm you for the world."

"Show it," chirped the bird and it whirled round he flew to a nearby tree. Doris, however, did not get as near as my friend, Mr. Hoot Owl. Maybe he wouldn't feel complimented. I'm Mr. Whippoorwill. I guess you couldn't see me very well down in the grass. See my light? Brown, grayish white and black suit? You never saw an Owl with a white collar just like mine, did you?"

"Gracious, yes," laughed Doris softly, "that white streak across your neck does look like a white collar. I don't know whether Hoot Owl can boast of whiskers around his mouth like yours or not. I've never been so very close to him. Well, Mr. Whippoorwill, have you a mate and do you live around here?"

"I've crossed the woods to Grandma's house a good many times but I've never seen you before."

"That's because you're always in the house after dark and never get up early enough in the mornings."

Copyright, 1928, Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

"I'm Mr. Whippoorwill."

chirped Mr. Whippoorwill. "We always sleep in the daytime and fly after dark or very early in the morning. Yes, indeed, I have a mate and she looks a great deal like me, only her tail is dusky in color where mine is white. I don't think I could tell so Doris could see it better. Then too the band across her breast is buff instead of white like mine."

"Goodness, me," mused Doris. "Why do you squat on the bank like that?"

"Because I'll tumble off if I tried to hold on like most birds," chuckled Mr. Whippoorwill. "You see, we Whippoorwills have such small feet, we couldn't perch like other birds if we wanted to. Our bodies are so much heavier than most birds. Come on over in that wood and tell me if the mate is there. I left her sitting on her eggs."

He hopped over the ground slowly and Doris followed him.

Before she knew it he was standing before Mrs. Whippoorwill who was all crunched down on the ground.

What Doris asked was the trouble was, both Mr. and Mrs. Whippoorwill laughed merrily.

"I was just covering my eggs, my dear," she replied. She raised herself from the ground and there in a pile of leaves rested two mottled eggs. "Gracious, doesn't Daddy Whippoorwill make you a nest?" asked the astonished Doris. "I thought all birds laid their eggs in nests."

"Most birds do," replied Mrs. Whippoorwill, "but we don't find it necessary. At that I think I'm better off than my neighbor, Mrs. Cowbird. She doesn't lay her eggs in nests."

"Well, I'll say you're better than she is, I'll say that," replied Doris. "We do take care of our own children, don't we?"

Just then Doris heard Mama calling and bidding her new friends good-bye she hurried on home.

Love's Embers

Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

All Aboard for the Beach Picnic!

JUDGING from the actions of the members of our farmhouse family, Lillian was not alone in her thankfulness that the beach party was at hand. From the moment that Katie's rising bell-ringing by agreement an hour earlier than usual—ushered in the day, to the time of our departure for the bay, there was no dissonant note in the chorus of delight at the prospect in front of us.

Of course I was no save to Lillian and to me did the affair appear to have any other possibilities than enjoyment. And we were careful to let slip no careless word or look which would betray her plan to watch Philip Vertizon's actions, and mine to essay the winning of Eleanor Lincoln's confidence, that I might help her.

One other thing pressed upon my consciousness and my conscience, and that was the remembrance of the promise I had made Noel Vertizon that sometime during the day or evening I would contrive to give him an opportunity of seeing Mary Harrison alone in order that he might find out the secret of her avoidance of him.

Our guests arrived early, as did our host—for Philip Vertizon was giving the affair, with Katie as his efficient major-domo, with so overweening a sense of her own importance as "boss of the job," as she herself expressed it, that she gave us all unlimited amusement through the day. And by ten o'clock the guests of ours, ranging in cost and importance from Philip Vertizon's big limousine to the remodeled flivver with a wagon box for picnic necessities which Jim drove, was on its way to the beach.

Eleanor Lincoln drove her own smart runabout, and after her arrival at the farm I heard her offer Noel Vertizon the other seat for the drive to the bay. He was prompt in

A Fashion Model's Diary

By GRACE THORNCLEIFFE

She Discusses Youthful Evening Frocks.

"MADAME, let me see some thing in evening models for my daughter," said Mrs. Cordice, entering the shop with her young daughter, Julie.

"Very well, Mrs. Cordice," replied Madame, "Helene, tell Grace to model our 'jeune fille' evening frocks."

Whereupon, Helene entered the models' room and said with a grin, "Grace, show some 'S. S. and G.' evening dresses for Julie Cordice."

"I knew exactly what she meant—'S. S. and G.' standing for the 'Sweet, Simple and Girlish' type of dress. Modeling it has always been a delightful bore to me."

I modeled several of our most tame and politely girlish frocks. I could see a storm brewing in back of Julie Cordice's eyes. She knew she wanted to tear every sweet, girly-lush ruffle and flounce from the dresses I showed. They seemed so formless.

"No," she said darkly, after we had gone through our entire supply of youthful models. "I don't like any of them. Mother, as a matter of fact, I'm rather tired of going to proms and have longed as though I were terribly grown up for thirteen. What I want is an evening dress, you know."

I smiled in sympathy. Mrs. Cordice blushed. She had probably been dreading that statement. She is the type that would like to keep her children in the cradle in order to retain a Baby Peggy age herself.

"Madame," I said eagerly, "I believe our new fashion would please Miss Cordice. May I model it?"

And right there, the problem was met and mastered. The frock was youthful enough to please Mrs. Cordice and just sophisticated enough

BIBLE THOUGHT

PRESERVATION AND DESTRUCTION—The Lord preserveth all them that love him; but all the wicked will he destroy.—Psalm 145:20.

PRAYER—Lord, our souls wait on Thee and in Thy word do we hope.

Stimulating Enterprise.

Enterprise is a great factor in business. People may be faithful and accurate up to a certain point, and yet may so lack enterprise that they produce no prosperity for themselves and those who depend on them.

We need enterprise not merely in promoting manufacturing industries but on this factor efficient distribution of commodities depends. Unless a community has enterprising retail stores, catering to the needs of the people in an aggressive way, the service of those stores is likely to be mediocre.

The success of an enterprising dealer, however, depends on how far the people will take an interest in his enterprises. Let us suppose that he sees a chance to obtain some very fine and substantial lot of goods at a low price. It takes considerable money to go into the deal, and he takes some risks on it. Everything depends on whether he can work off those goods promptly. If he has to carry them over to the next season, he is likely to lose money. But if he can turn them over at once, he makes money, and he gives the public an excellent opportunity.

It has been one of the great services of newspaper advertising, that it provides the means by which the enterprising store can carry on such enterprises and make good. Such stores buy these lots in large quantities, and they depend on newspaper advertising to point out the opportunity to the people, and get the public backing for their enterprise. If they could not reach the public through the newspapers, they could not probably sell those goods within a reasonable time. Thus they would miss the chance to enlarge their trade, and the public would miss the opportunity. But advertising makes enterprise possible, and secures its benefits for the people.

Honest Tax Returns.

Before the United States provided for a tax on incomes, skepticism was expressed as to the ability of the government to collect this tax. It was claimed that a great many persons would fraudulently avoid this payment.

Some forms of property are exempt from this taxation, so that many are able to escape this tax to a large extent or entirely, and yet they have complied with the law. If they choose to put their money in tax exempt bonds, they have the right to do so. If the people object to this form of avoiding taxes, they can cease to allow the privilege of exemption from taxation.

According to the tax returns of 1924, less than seven per cent of the population filed income returns. It seems incredible that the number of people having incomes calling for a return was so small as this. It would look as if many persons who under the law should file returns, had failed to do so, either by ignorance, or by a feeling that they could safely dodge it.

Some persons who might like to evade the law, are restrained by the severe penalties. Anyway this tax is a very effective means of getting a large sum of money for the government, and it raises the vast amounts needed to pay for the war and its incidental costs, more easily than they could be had in any different way.

A great many people may cheat the government in small ways in these returns without being discovered. Some day when they least expect it a government deputy may descend on them and discover their fraud. Considering what enormous benefits the people get from their government, they should take pride in making honest returns. It is remarked that people are inclined to underestimate their receipts and overestimate their expenses in making these returns. It would show a better spirit to err in the opposite direction. Cheating Uncle Sam defrauds a mighty good friend.

The Cause of Divorce.

A committee of the Rhode Island legislature which has been studying the problem of divorce, thinks the increased number of such separations is the result of the feminine movement, and the changing attitude of women toward marriage.

In the days when men were considered the heads of the household, the women used to feel they had to submit to anything the men did. But now if he men do things they do not like, they do not feel bound to them.

Such a separation often comes from frivolous reasons. But quite as often it comes because the men have misbehaved themselves. The women will not lie down and submit to it like a fawning dog, the Crime Reduced.

According to the report of the New York police commissioner, the number of serious offenses dropped in that city from 8,137 in 1925 to 6,783 in 1927. However, the smaller number shows that a lot of dangerous crooks are still loose.

The community should not rest satisfied while any such number of desperate villains are at large. They should support the laws of the land with fully equipped and manned police departments, and severe penalties for crime. But the principal protection against crime is found in giving boys such wholesome ideas that a crooked path has no attractions for them.

Word comes from Paris that women will wear ruffles. Anything else?—Cincinnati, O., Times Star.

IT'S RAINING

AND now
It's
Raining out
Today
And I have stolen
Far away
Within the corners
Of my room
Where I await a
Dismal doom
For rainy days
Somehow are sad
And make a fellow
Far from Glad—
There is no sense
In rain,
It seems,
When rain disturbs
Your happy
Dreams—
Communion with my Soul I hold
Although I'm feeling
Far from bold;
And rainy days bring
Me to mind
Perhaps I haven't
Been so kind
To fellowmen, I've
Fallen flat
As useless as an
Alley cat,
My soul treks forth
To view itself,
On rainy days
I'm just a
Pelf—

And what we mean to say
Is,
Don't hide your soul
From your own gaze
Or you'll be
Living
In a haze,
There's work for every Man to do
If to himself
He will be true;
On rainy days
You'll seek your
Goal
If first you'll Find
You've found your Soul.

We seem to have started something with our expressed desire in a recent four-line jingle to become a cat. Here's two contributions that have been brought, via Uncle Sam, from Waverly (O.). Here goes:

If I could live a life illustrious,
As do all men of fame,
I'd choose the most illustrious
And Lindy'd be his name.

If I could live a life illustrious,
As does the editor's cat,
I'd choose to live like Lincoln
But not split rails at that.
—R. L. B.

Boy Ryder must wake up in the morning with a smile when he finds that Mrs. Bob reads his paragraphs and actually seems to find joy in them.

THE BLACKBIRD

In the far corner,
Close by the swings,
Every morning
A blackbird sings.

His bill's so yellow,
His coat's so black,
That he makes a fellow
Whistle back.

Ann, my daughter
Thinks that he
Sings for us two Especially.

turalization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Fabien, good and handsome youth of France, trains for the priesthood; but meets and loves Manon, Lescaut, beautiful orphan who is coveted by hideous Count Ravoire. Fabien saves her and carries her off to Paris. Circumstances force her to surrender to Ravoire. She rejoins Fabien, and they live so extravagantly that Fabien is forced to capitalize a genius for cards. The king plays Fabien at cards for Manon, accuses him of cheating. Fabien is sent to be deported. Fabien kills Ravoire, and follows the prison caravan to Havre.

CHAPTER XX—Continued

Fabien had rushed up to Manon and put his arms about her protectively. They felt lost and out of place. All the elken glory of magnificent clothes and priceless jewels that had been theirs the night before at the Duc de Richelieu's salon had been literally stripped from them, leaving only two very tragic young people who had lost everything except their love for each other. They did not even own the clothes they wore—Fabien's suit was borrowed from Tiberge and Manon's dress was a uniform from the Magdalen!

Paselen and loyalty had been the indirect cause of all their misfortune, yet happily enough it was the only thing that survived every ordeal.

Money, that had once seemed so vital to their happiness, now meant nothing. There was not a single coin between them, nor did it matter. In the excitement and stress of the moment Fabien had left his money on the card table at the Duc's salon, but if all his winnings had been in a sack at their feet on the wharf they would have been useless.

The only thing that concerned them was separation, and although Fabien had bolstered up Manon's courage by saying he was sailing with her for America, he knew there was not a chance in the world of his being able to board the deportation ship.

Within the hour Manon would be sent to exile, alone, and it was Fabien's lot to remain and suffer the consequences of opposing the King and murdering the Comte.

HAPTER XXI

Moored to the end of the wharf was the grim little sailing vessel that was destined to carry the exiled women across the Atlantic to the penal colony in New Orleans, Louisiana.

It was an annual voyage and the passage required two long, agonizing months. However, the miserable accommodations and hardships did not prevent His Honor, the Governor of the distant Colony, from making the voyage in company with Synnelet, a favorite nephew, for the express purpose of selecting for themselves the most attractive of the condemned women.

While the ship was being loaded for the sail, two men leaned against the barrels on deck and calmly, yet with decided interest and speculation, looked over the chained women to see if they were particularly promising.

The Governor was about fifty, respectable in appearance and with a good face—that reflected an understanding and reliable character. Synnelet was younger by twenty years and his features were decidedly those of a sensualist. He was not married and had no desire to be.

After sizing the women up for some time the gaze of both men returned to Manon.

"At last they have sent us a woman worth looking at!" exclaimed Synnelet with a whistle of delight.

"I see the one you mean—but do you notice that her affection is already bestowed upon a young man?" The Governor saw Fabien holding Manon in his arms.

"What difference does that make? He will be left here, I shall take his place and she will be more interesting for the experience."

The hard thing about saving a dollar is you must save it every day to have it.—Coshocton, O. Tribune.

Synnelet was impatient for the ship to get under way so that he might have Manon to himself.

The Governor had always given this headstrong nephew everything he wanted so it was a foregone conclusion that the prettiest girl on the chain should be assigned to Synnelet's cabin and tender mercies.

The important matter of a companion being settled for Synnelet, the Governor left him contemplating his future mistress, and went off to superintend the handling of a consignment of dangerous men that were being herded out on the wharf.

After the manner of the women these men were chained together and driven onto the ship like animals. There were convicts, thieves, rogues and murderers among them. All undesirable characters that were being stored away in the unspeakably dirty hold of the ship like so many sacks of coal, to be dumped at the penal colony in America.

The armed guards chained these men to the ship's walls with scarcely enough room between them to move. The only light and air they were to have came through the close iron grating in the floor of the deck above. A terrible fate for any man, no matter how great his crime!

After the men had been securely locked away the Governor gave instructions for the women to be brought aboard. They were a pitiful sight, but the guards had neither mercy nor compassion for the unfortunate girls or their families and roughly brought the farewells to an abrupt end.

Manon clung so tightly to Fabien that he was pushed along with her up to the gang plank before the guards realized what they had done.

"Clear out of here!" ordered the most burly fellow, addressing Fabien.

"There is time," he stalled, dreading to let Manon go.

"Yes, and this is it." The guard grabbed Manon roughly by the arm and pulling her away said, "Now, nothing's holding you—go."

Fabien's face turned a ghastly white, he set upon the guard with clenched fists, but was pushed aside and immediately plied with two other uniformed men, whose duty it was to preserve order.

Sobbing piteously, Manon was pushed away from her lover. Her dreams of happiness were again shattered.

Synnelet, still watching Manon from the deck, called to his uncle, "That's the one for me, all right. She appears to be a faithful little soul." He was generous enough to admire traits in others that were foreign to his own nature.

"You shall have your choice, my boy." The Governor gave his nephew a fond smile.

Synnelet noticed that Manon was in a state of collapse as she and the other women were pulled and pushed across the gang plank. It did not suit his plans for her to be too rudely treated and he hastened to speak with the guard in charge.

"Be gentle with this girl and see that she is not hurt," he requested. The guard winked knowingly, but paid no attention to the suggestion.

Not for a moment had Fabien taken his eyes from Manon since she was torn from his arms, and he saw Synnelet, apparently a privileged character, speak in her behalf and it nearly drove him insane. He thought—she is being taken away from me again, I am powerless to follow, and even before the ship pulls anchor another man is waiting to annoy her!

As if in a dream Fabien saw the sailors scurrying about on deck preparing to get under way. The Captain was shouting commands. The crowd of sad friends and relatives gathered about the wharf held waving a last farewell to their loved ones as the girls and women leaned over the railing, looking back with regret and longing. They stood quite close together in a long line, because they were still bound together by the cumbersome iron chain.

Synnelet was directly behind Manon appraising her with a satisfied smile!

The ship's anchor was weighed. The bulk moved slowly away from the wharf. Manon was being taken away! ! !

Fabien wanted to curse. His mind was in a mad whirl. He seemed to hear Manon calling, calling to him for help, and he felt so small and helpless as he just stood there watching her move away from him.

Suddenly the sound of galloping horses penetrated his consciousness and with regret and longing. They stood quite close together in a long line, because they were still bound together by the cumbersome iron chain.

Synnelet was directly behind Manon appraising her with a satisfied smile!

Talking moving pictures in the home from the ordinary radio can be expected as the next development in the field of antennae, B batteries and static. Any day you will be reading of them on the front page of the newspapers. Experiments are now being conducted in the Schneckstadt laboratories of the General Electric company. Toward those workrooms where miracles are accomplished the attention of the entire motion picture industry is being turned. It was when making inquiry as to the business that took a certain film executive to the east that I learned of his research. The radio motion picture device, as I have found out, is extremely simple, and can be added to any home set. A light, a lens and a rotating disk pierced with holes do the work. Light rays are changed into electrical impulses, sent through the air, received in your home, changed back into light, and there you are. Your loud speaker will account for the spoken words that are synchronized with the action. Broadcasting of the talking pictures will be done from any central station. Perfection of the device is probably far in the future.

Esther Ralston's party an evening or two ago was a tremendous success. It was a "kid party." Johnny Hines came as Little Lord Fauntleroy. George Bancroft dressed as Huckleberry Finn. Frank Tuttle, lean and bespectacled director, forgot his Yale background, donned tights and wings and carried a little sign which read: "I've lost my stork!"

What is a motion picture star? To the layman a "star" is any motion picture player. In Hollywood he name means something more. A star is a player of unusual ability whose name means more to the public than the title of any picture they may be playing in. For instance, for a star the billing will be: "Richard Dix in Sporting Goods." "For a picture with featured players only the billing offers: "Beau Sabreur" with Gary Cooper, Evelyn Brent, etc." Featured players play in support of stars—star in support of no one. Extras furnish atmosphere in the mob scenes. The caste system is strong in Hollywood.

THE MOVIE DICTIONARY
Track shot—One in which the camera itself moves.
Script—The scene schedule of a story from which the film is made.
Swing gang—The men who do the heavy work on a motion picture set.

In this Capital of Kleigs directors are supermen—a race apart. Producers and players alike expect them to accomplish the impossible. Young William Wellman was recently directing an aviation picture, "The Legion of the Condemned." To coach one especially important air sequence he strapped a parachute on his back, climbed into the cockpit of the camera plane and soared away. Two extras, playing infantrymen, were interested spectators. They never took their eyes from Wellman's ship as it swerved, dipped, looped and zoomed high in the air. Finally it came down, Wellman climbed out and took off his parachute pack.

"I knew he didn't have the nerve to jump," sneered one of the extras to his companion. "He didn't even try to leave the plane."

Things never seen in Hollywood: Emil Jennings' big Mercedes car without a chow dog up beside the driver.

The Great Dane battle is in a temporary truce, but hostilities may break out at any minute on a new front. Harold Lloyd and Francis X. Bushman are the opposing generals in the field and behind them the entire film colony is divided. As the recent Ambassador dog shows Lloyd's fine beast was expected to take the blue ribbon. The judges decided for Bushman's entry. So Lloyd's thoughts are now devoted to two interests: his new comedy picture, "Speedy," and to the improvement of his kennels. Lloyd has a dozen or more Great Danes. Only a film star of the first magnitude could afford to own them, for their appetites are said to be enormous.

Louise Brooks, the former Follies dancer, has just returned from New York. I saw her the other night at Coconut Grove in a beige lace evening gown that touched the floor. It got a lot of attention.

Richard Arlen, he of "Wings" fame, and Jobyna Ralston are, without doubt, the happiest young married couple in Hollywood. Their new home near Toluca Lake, beyond the Hollywoodland Hills, is finally finished. Finally is the right word. Months and months it has been building. Dick and Jobyna wanted a real Spanish hacienda. They rejected plan after plan as submitted by the modern "stucco" architects. Then came inspiration. They drove out to the Mexican truck gardening area outside Los Angeles and found an old Mexican building himself an adobe barn close to a crumbling, rambling old adobe ranch house. They hired this old gentleman to supervise the building of their own home. Mexicans cannot be hurried. But the house is now finished. Among other features it has three outdoor fireplaces off little patios—one of them right outside the windows of the main guest room. It must be restful to go to sleep with the light from those glowing embers dancing on the walls.

News of the week from the studios: Reginald Denny himself is the author of his next picture, a narrative of his experiences in Mexico. Cecil B. DeMille is in the midst of his next picture, "The Goddess Girl." Gary Cooper is playing Colleen Moore's leading man in her new vehicle. Mary Brian has been signed for a featured role in First National's "Harold Teen."

You clamor for equality. Your moral changes in life are fifty-fifty. By behaving well, you can increase your chances to sixty, seventy, while the ill-behaved man's chances will be reduced to forty, or thirty.

Information, temperance, fairness, politeness, good work, good health, give you an advantage.

Everyone has a little disposition to rob the other fellow.

Rob him by behaving better than he behaves.

An editor in the East refers to me as an optimist pessimist. It is a good line. If you behave well, and work hard, be optimistic about results; you will seldom be disappointed. But if a town bum wants to borrow money of you, be pessimistic. If a rich man of no ability promises great results for his community, and offers stock for sale, be pessimistic. Pessimism wins often over optimism. I am ashamed to say so, but it is true.

"Can men keep up the old pace of gallantry toward the women? Real women are worthy of it, and properly appreciative, but a lot of tough ones have grown up who deserve the police court rather than gallantry. Will it finally become necessary to revise gallantry and cut out the unworthy?"

A man who is making money never runs away. It seems to be the rule that no matter how much a man thinks of a woman, he will not run away with her if he has to give up a job or business that is very profitable and in good condition.

I am often astonished at the number of clever people now living. Probably we have twenty to one, as compared to a hundred years ago. And as we know better, we should do better. Our trouble is not ignorance; it is carelessness, silliness, meanness, unfairness, all qualities that ruin.

When a boy is sixteen and hasn't anything else he is pretty apt to have a girl.

Men have no opportunity to judge the wisdom of women; women are wisest when no men are around.

Sin is being poor, and a trouble to others; righteousness is taking care of yourself and helping others a little.

Women will never be satisfied with their rights until they have liberty to walk up to the best behaved of us, and ait us over the head; in no other way can they completely express their general disapproval of our sex.

STATE RESTS CASE

LISBON, O., Feb. 20.—(INS)—The state rested its case shortly before noon here today in the second trial of Saranus A. Lengel, ex-Canton police chief, for alleged complicity in the slaying of Don Mellett, Canton editor.

F. Lones admitted part of Lengel's first trial testimony.

Fish-Leather Harness

Fish leather as a substitute for leather from hides is being used in the United States and Japan for army equipment and harness. The leather, which is said to be as serviceable as hide leather, is also cheaper. It is made principally from the skins of sharks, porpoises and dog-fish.

"TEA FOR THREE" IS SUAVE COMEDY

Cody and Aileen Pringle Prove to Be Screen's Best Fun-Making Stars.

Sophisticated farce, entertainment of that suave, delightful type that tickles the intelligence as well as the risibles, is promised at the Metropolitan theatre, when "Tea for Three," a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture starring Lew Cody and Aileen Pringle open a two-day engagement beginning Monday.

Adapted from the famous laugh-ter-provoking stage success of Roi Cooper Megrue that delighted four continents during its world-wide tour, the film has retained all the pleasure of its old form and added several diverting touches to its triangle theme of jealous husband, fascinating wife and handsome friend.

When the busy husband cancels a luncheon engagement with his wife, she meets a friend, who steals her portrait and refuses to relinquish it unless she dine some evening at his apartment. How the husband discovers their tete-a-tete, and the wife regains the picture and the friend learns a thing or two about a lovely woman, provides an evening of exquisite mirth and amusement. There is a yacht party, a suicide pact and other unexpected complications.

Robert Z. Leonard directed. In the supporting cast are: Owen Moore, Dorothy Sebastian, Phillips Smalley and Edward Thomas.

Hardiness of Germs

Sir William Simpson demonstrated the hardiness of bacteria when he opened a test tube that he had sealed twenty-six years ago and found the germ culture still was alive. This is a record, he claims.

Letters To the Editor

Editor, The Circleville Herald:—

Why was Ohio the only state singled out in which Secretary Hoover has consented to make a contest for presidential delegates?

Was not the real motive or object of those few who were so active in urging him to become a contestant in the Ohio primary against Senator Willis, nothing more or less, than to gain party control of Ohio politics?

How much more statesman-like it would have been, had Secretary Hoover turned a deaf ear to their urgent appeals instead of allowing himself to become a party to a matter which is responsible for factional dissension and strife which in all probability may be directly the result of him losing the much coveted nomination for President.

It seems improbable that Secretary Hoover should have concluded to tolerate the use of his name when practically the entire state organization is for Senator Willis.

Before concluding, perhaps it would not be out of place to direct my remarks to Representative

Burton, relative to his part in this unfortunate and regrettable episode.

But instead of adhering to, and carrying out the declaration above cited, which he declared but recently in no uncertain terms in favor of Senator Willis' candidacy for President, is now raising the Confederate banner of opposition against the Senator who has always been his true friend and loyal supporter, and who not only inspired as a presidential candidate in favor of Mr. Burton, but in addition thereto presented his name at the Chicago Convention, 1916, as Ohio's favorite son, in which was made the most memorable nominating speech, perhaps, ever delivered on such an occasion in this country. It seems strange, indeed, to be so ungrateful for favors rendered.

New Maytag Owners every day

For homes without electricity, the Maytag is available with in-built gasoline motor.

EVERY day 1400 new Maytag owners in every section of the country are introduced to Wash-day Happiness—happiness because of washings done in less time, about one hour; happiness because of clothes washed beautifully clean without hand-rubbing.

The Maytag is the only washer with a non-breakable, cast-aluminum tub—the tub that keeps water hot for an entire washing, then empties and cleans itself.

Because of the silent, smooth-running, steel-cut gears, there is a remarkable absence of vibration, and vibration is a washer's greatest enemy.

Would you know wash-day happiness, try a Maytag. See the new soft Roller Water Remover with safety feed board and automatic tension adjustment—test and compare its many outstanding features.

FUGAZY CLAIMS FIRST OUTDOOR TITLE MATCH

RIVAL OF TEX TELLS PLANS FOR 3 BATTLES

Promoter Says He Will Have Canzoneri Meet Charley Phil Rosenberg.

By DAVIS J. WALSH
I. N. S. Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—Humbert J. Fugazy, the man who talks a great rivalry with Tex Rickard, emerged from the deep silences today to claim that he has virtually beaten Rickard to the first title match of the outdoor season. He says he has just about closed with Tony Canzoneri to depend his newly acquired featherweight championship against Charley Phil Rosenberg at Ebberts field, Brooklyn, on the night of May 3. This is claim No. 1.

Number two is that Mickey Walker has agreed to defend his middleweight title under the good signor's auspices against George Courtney, the Oklahoman; Rene de Vos, the Belgian; Maxie Rosenbloom, the French Canadian, or any candidate acceptable to the New York commission.

To Meet Hansen
Claim number three is that the winner of the Godfrey-Paulino fight on the coast will be brought east to meet Knute Hansen in a heavy-weight elimination contest at the polo grounds. Just what the survivor of this three-handed pinocchio match is to do next. The good signor neglects to say. Nor does he go into details that might reconcile Paulino's adherence with the $8,000 controversy he and the good signor are indulging in at the moment. This is the only portion of the signor's proposed program that doesn't exactly add up right.

However, it may be that he won't need Paulino after Godfrey gets through with him. There isn't any apparent reason, at that, for Canzoneri to desert Rickard, who gave Tony his chance. But, then, anything can happen in this sharp-shooters' game and very often does. Rosenberg, of course, will be glad to play ball on any proposition after being "on the ground" for a year. It isn't likely, either, that Rickard will want any part of the former bantamweight champion after being more or less confounded with that two-contract business that resulted in Rosenberg's suspension.

Ideal Fight Arena
As for Walker, there is little doubt that, if he fights here at all, it won't be for Rickard. Jack Kearns wouldn't do business with the latter if Tex gave him the box office concession.

THE FLEET FOOTED CORNHUSKER

Ebberts field, according to Fugazy, will be the ideal fighting arena when they increase its baseball seating capacity to 55,000, as they propose to do. But he is counting upon the Hansen versus the Godfrey-Paulino winner as his big shot and, therefore, only the polo grounds will do. He seems to be forgetting that Charley Stoneham plans to do some fight promotion of his own but then Charley very seldom spurns a night's rental; at least, no one ever caught him at it. Godfrey, Paulino and Hansen are the "outlaws" of Rickard's tournament. That is, they don't belong for some reason or none at all. Napoleon Dorval is another cast-off who might get into this declassing event. Just for lack of nothing better to do.

They apparently are not going anywhere and so the signor thinks they might as well start as soon as possible.

HAHN PLANS NEW WINNING STREAK

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—(INS)—Lloyd Hahn, whose unbroken string of thirty-one victories was snapped by Ray Conger in Kansas City on Saturday night, will attempt to start another winning streak at the annual New York A. C. games here tonight.

Hahn will run in the Baxter mile in an effort to capture his second leg on the trophy. He will compete against Sidney Robinson, of Mississippi; Willie Sullivan, formerly of Georgetown; and J. J. Elliott, of North Carolina, hailed as the south's best miler.

If there had been as much action in the Dempsey-Tunney fight as there is in the fight to put on motion pictures of it, there would have been a knock-out in the second round. — Akron, O. Beacon Journal.

NINETEEN ARE TO COMPETE IN MUSHING RACE

Woman Driver Entered For First Time in Dog Sled Derby, Starting Today

QUEBEC, Feb. 20.—(INS)—Nineteen dog-mushers, including the first woman dog-sled racer to compete in Canada, will start in the eastern international dog-sled derby, which opens here today. The woman in question is the famous Mrs. E. P. Ricker, who has trained for several years in New England's shorter races for this 120-mile classic.

The race will last through today, tomorrow and Wednesday, each team traversing 40 miles daily. The ruling favorites are the 25-year-old Emilie St. Godard, winner in 1925 and also last year, and Leonhard Seppala, 52-year-old hero of the serum dash in Alaska, who finished second last year.

St. Godard, having twice before won the Quebec derby, will permanently possess the gold cup if he wins this time. The cash prizes offered this year total $2,200, of which $1,000 goes to the winner, $400 to second place, $300 to third place, and $200 to fourth, and lesser prizes to the trailers.

The dark horse is 15-year-old Paddy Nolan, who ran fourth last year. If the going should be unduly difficult, this youngster's ability to scamper with his team will give him an advantage over all his elders; but even under normal conditions Paddy will give a good account of himself, for he has a new team this year.

JOCKEY RIDES SIX STRAIGHT WINNERS

HAVANA, CUBA, Feb. 20.—(INS)—Turf speculators who played Al Robertson's mounts were sporting healthy bankrolls today. After taking third place in the first race here yesterday, the little jockey brought his mount home in front in each of the next six races, tying the world's record.

Each of Robertson's winners paid good prices, ranging from 2 to 1, to 4 to 1.

Only six other jockeys ever have ridden six winners in one day.

SPORTSMATTER

BY FRANK GETTY

The dream of race fans, a totalisator for pari-mutuel betting machines which will show at a glance the prices on offer against each entry, has come true at last.

To the ingenuity of an English school-master, we are indebted for this machine, which has solved a problem the shrewdest of turf men believed insoluble.

One result of the invention may be to revolutionize racing in the inventor's country. Totalisators, as they are called in England, may replace bookmakers, to the satisfaction of everyone except the latter.

Oralists at last may be dispensed with, except for the benefit of those backers who prefer to gamble on the odds they can obtain rather than secure a fair starting price.

The object to pari-mutuel machines as operated at present has been that it is impossible for a better to learn the odds against the horse he wishes to back without running from one board to another, doing intricate sums. By the time the sum is finished, fluctuations in the odds have upset the calculations and rendered them useless.

Mr. R. M. Hamilton, formerly a mathematics master at Malvern College, who was employed in the Ballistics office of the British Admiralty during the World War, has invented and patented a "robot bookmaker" which overcomes just these difficulties.

On each of Mr. Hamilton's machines there is room for the prices against 40 starters, sufficient for any race.

Instead of showing how many tickets have been sold, as do our present pari-mutuel machines, the super-totalisator shows the prevailing odds against each entry. These figures change constantly with the flow of money wagered with the "iron men," but are always accurate and informative.

Moreover, winnings can be paid instantly after a race, since the invention automatically deducts the five percent, and registers the proper odds.

And the machine can be made so portable that only a few would be needed!

There seems at first glance to be one flaw in Mr. Hamilton's machine as far as its practicability is concerned.

It is so constructed that a backer can have his choice between the starting price or the prevailing odds at the moment he makes his wager.

A ticket can be stamped either starting price or with the odds of the moment.

I have not gone into this thing very thoroughly, but offhand, I should say that I could take $100 and a couple of strong elbows and break any "robot bookmaker" in the business.

In a two-horse race, $5 bet on Horse A and $45 on Horse B, would make the former an 8 to 1 shot. Then the bets reversed at the odds, the first bets having been made at starting price, would allow the gambler to have $45 at 8 to 1 on one horse, and $45 on the other at even money.

If you see what I mean?

Barber Seeks To Go To French Chamber

PARIS, Feb. 20.—(UP)—Francois Albert, who was senator from the Vienne department and minister of education in a recent cabinet, is preparing his candidacy for the April general elections. His opponent is a socialist and a barber, M. Albert called on him the other day while the barber was shaving a customer.

"Glad to see you, Monsieur Albert," said he. "Of course we have lots of things to talk about."

Then he called to his wife who was in the kitchen:

"Marie, come out here and finish this customer."

Marie dropped her preparations for the evening meal, grabbed the brush and the razor and shaved the customer while her husband and the other candidate talked politics.

AUTO SPEED MARK MADE AT DAYTONA

LONDON, Feb. 20.—(INS)—British automobile circles in general and Major H. O. D. Seagrave, former record molder in particular, were most enthusiastic today over Captain Malcolm Campbell's feat at Daytona Beach, Fla., yesterday when he broke the world's automobile speed record.

Captain Campbell established the record of 206.95 miles an hour, thereby wresting the championship from Major Seagrave, who had driven his car at the rate of 203.79 miles an hour over the same stretch of beach.

"I am delighted to hear of Campbell's feat," Major Seagrave said. "I have always thought his car capable of beating my record with a decent margin."

"Campbell deserves all the credit he can get, for he had against him all the money and brains of the automobile world and in Frank Lockhart had America's strongest contender."

JOHN ABERNETHY WINNING JUMPER

In an indoor track meet at Cincinnati on Saturday night, John Abernethy, son of Mrs. Marie Abernethy, of West Franklin street, won the running high jump with a mark of 6 feet, 1 inch.

During the past season, Abernethy, who is captain of the track squad at St. Xavier college, made the record of 6 feet, 5 inches in the running high jump.

He will compete in the Olympic elimination games at Cincinnati this spring and is believed to have a good chance to make the American Olympic track team.

"I'll Tell The World"

In spite of all your enthusiasm over a new salad oil or shoe or radio battery, you cannot possibly pass on the good news to more than a few people. You can't really "tell the world."

The manufacturer himself is in the same fix. He can't tell the world. His salesmen can't. His dealers can't. And the world ought to be told. It wants to know. It wants to know what's new, what's not only good, but better than the best; or cheaper; or more durable; or more useful; or just plain more fun.

Advertising "tells the world" today. Back of every advertisement is somebody, perhaps a whole group of somebodies, full of enthusiasm just as you are when you discover something that makes things easier or better for you. They are telling just as many people as they can reach in the world in person. But that is only a tiny fraction of those they speak to in advertising.

Advertisements are truly personal things to the people who write them. And they can be exceedingly personal for you, too, for they mean better food, better clothing, increased health, a happier home, greater prosperity.

for some years, and their participation this year merits some praise, especially for the youngsters and their coaches, Miss Rector and Mr. Peck. Washington held the Ashville girls to a score of 8-4 the first half, but allowed them to get 21 points while they were getting 2 in the last half. Coach Irwin, Ashville, will have to meet the fast Monroe team Thursday night.

Atlanta Boys Win

Atlanta's poor showing in the first half of the game with Scioto was expressed well by one of the players at the close of the half when he said, "We can't play a good game of marbles tonight." Nearly five minutes of jockeying took place before K. Lamb was fouled and made good for the first point of the game. Miller's boys were able to work the ball to their end of the floor and take shots fourteen times before Evans succeeded in dropping one through as the quarter ended.

Evans got away the second quarter and dropped four more through, while McClure, a freshman, dropped in a short one, and two from the middle of the floor for Scioto. The half ended Atlanta 13, Scioto 7.

The second half opened, McClure was fouled and made good his two shots and added another long one from beyond the middle of the floor near the scorer's table. This made the score Atlanta 13, Scioto 11. Turner, Evans and Farmer got busy and made five baskets in quick succession, and snowed the Sciotosians under. The fourth quarter featured good work on the part of Evans, while K. Lamb added four points for his team. Turner, Atlanta center, was off form in the shooting during the game.

Scioto Girls Lose
In the last game of the first round of the girls' tournament, Monroe, true to form, easily defeated the Scioto team 35 to 10. The Porter twins were unable to get the hang of the basket in the first half, laying many shots against the board that should have gone in. During the game however, Helen succeeded in eight field goals while Hazel made six. Brust accounted for one field goal in each half, and added two points by the foul route, while Helen added one more the same way. Trego played the best game for Scioto, while Johnson succeeded in tying her in points.

Monroe played easily and with confidence not often seen on a tournament floor. The team promises to make it warm for any team it meets, and it is hard to say just how much they have in store, for they did not have to extend themselves in this game. Mr. Bronner has a team that should come through.

Miss Lender coached the Scioto girls and shares with Miss Dean and Miss Rector, the honors of being the only lady coaches in the county.

Ashville Boys Win
After defeating Ashville both at Tarleton and Ashville, Saltcreek allowed the up-county team to run away with them in their first tournament game. Heath, Saltcreek center, was suffering with a bad boil on his neck, and Hart-

ranf, star forward, was suffering with cramps. This may have caused the team lay down in the second quarter after making point for point the first. The game promised to be interesting and many felt that Ashville would again meet defeat after Cloud had dropped in a nice one for Ashville and Hartman retaliated with two for Saltcreek. In the second quarter Hartman again came through with a basket that put them in the lead after McGlone had located. Boone came through and tied the score. McGlone ran wild and made two fielders and made good on one foul, the score at the half being Saltcreek 6, Ashville, 11. Cloud and McGlone broke loose the second half and scored at will.

In the last game of the week's session, Walnut girls easily outpointed Jackson. Barr again starred under the basket for Walnut, and Allen scored longer shots at will. M. Ours and M. Finley played the best for Jackson. Walnut girls should now go through to the finals, and stand the best chance of giving Monroe a second place in this tournament. Heskett played a splendid game for Walnut at guard, doing much better than in the Saltcreek game. The game ended with Walnut having 27 points and Jackson 10.

Jackson Fights
The outstanding feature of Saturday's tournament was the

tal in accounting for nine of New Holland's points. Timmons did not play his usual game.

The score does not indicate the trend of the game. At the end of the first quarter New Holland led Jackson by three points with a score of 6-3. In the second quarter Jackson made point for point with their opponents. In the third quarter Jackson weakened and New Holland added five points to her lead. In the last quarter New Holland added 7 points while Jackson accounted for four. The game ended New

TWO MURDERERS PAY WITH LIVES

BELLEFONT, Pa., Feb. 20 — (UP)—Two negro murderers, of Philadelphia, Frank Arnold and Frank E. Lockett, were electrocuted here today at Rockview penitentiary.

Arnold was executed for the slaying of his common law wife, Lottie Arnold, Oct. 12, 1926.

Lockett was the sixth man to go to the electric chair within a year for slaying a Philadelphia policeman. Lockett shot and killed Patrolman Joseph E. Bell, the night of Dec. 11, 1926.

Seven Boys' Teams Eliminated From Tournament

HARD BATTLES PREDICTED FOR FINAL ROUNDS

Monroe and Walnut Expected to Clash For County Title
Honors For Girls.

By CARL F. DOEBLER

With seven boys' teams eliminated from the Pickaway county basketball tournament in the first week, Atlanta, New Holland, Walnut, Williamsport, Pickaway and Ashville remain to scrap for honors this week-end. Pickaway meets Williamsport in the first game Thursday night. Each team has a win to her credit over the other, and the game promises to be a battle. Pickaway has been handicapped by injuries to Capt. Smith and Forward Enoch. Smith received a fractured wrist in a recent game, while Enoch has a sprained ankle.

The winner of the game must meet the rejuvenated Ashville team, and McGlone and Cloud are going to be hard to stop. Should they win here they go into the finals. It seems at present that Ashville has the edge and many expect her to go through.

Favor New Holland
Walnut must meet the strong New Holland team Thursday night. New Holland should win, but must display a better brand of ball than with Jackson. Atlanta and New Holland then meet in the semi-finals, and we have two types of teams meeting. New Holland has a large team, and Atlanta a small but decidedly fast group. Whether the smaller, faster group can win from the larger one is a matter of conjecture. A good game with plenty of thrills and action is expected, and we are giving New Holland the edge.

With only Walnut, Monroe, Pickaway, Ashville and Muhlenberg in the running in the girls games, we have the five best teams of the county meeting. Walnut plays Muhlenberg in the semi-finals and should win. Monroe plays Ashville and should come through although Barch and Strader are bound to cause them trouble.

Pickaway must then meet the winners in the semi-finals. This game should cause Monroe some little trouble for ceremonies. Pickaway has several good guards and forwards. Monroe is, however, conceded the edge, and should meet Walnut in the finals. This will be a battle royal. Monroe has won from Walnut this year, and has a more experienced team. The score will be close, the game hard fought, and we should see a good game, as well played as any we have watched for sometime.

Atlanta Girls Lose
In the first game on Saturday afternoon Pickaway and Atlanta took the floor. Atlanta girls started in with a passing attack that bewildered the Black and Gold girls. As a result, Farmer was able to locate the basket for the first points of the game. Hinton was fouled and made good one point, later added a field goal as the first quarter ended with Pickaway 3, Atlanta 2. In the second quarter, Atlanta's guards let Anderson and Hinton add one basket each to the score. H. Anderson, McKenzie and Hampshire, Pickaway guards held Atlanta's team scoreless in the last three quarters of the game. Captain L. Hoskins and her sister M. Hoskins, played a fast guarding game and held the Pickaway score. Hinton, Pickaway forward, was easily the star of the game, making ten of her teams' 13 points.

Ashville Girls Win
Washington girls were easily defeated 2 to 6 by the larger Ashville squad. Barch sisters, Hay, and Strader, led the attack the second half that carried the smaller Washington guards off their feet. Dorothy Davis played best for Washington, while Agnes Frazier was able to make most of the points. The Davis to Davis combination did not work as well as usual as G. Davis was closely guarded. This was Washington's first attempt at the tournament.

Leroy Reeser Leaves To Face Murder Charge

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 20—(INS)—Leroy Reeser, 29, Circleville, O., alleged slayer of Mrs. Lucy Leahy, Birmingham, Ala., waived extradition here and was enroute to that city today according to police. Identification of Reeser, according to police was made by Detective Marvin Garner, Birmingham.

Reeser with a companion who registered as Paul Sheridan, 35, Columbus, was arrested last Tuesday at Waynesville, O., where they were said to have been surprised while rifling the office of a doctor. Dental gold, platinum and narcotics are said to have been found in possession of the men when they were searched.

OLD RUMOR TO BE PROBED BY SENATE GROUP

Walsh Wants to Know Amount of Money Harry Sinclair
Paid to Republicans.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20—(INS)—The five-year-old rumor that Harry F. Sinclair, the lesser of Teapot Dome, turned over several hundred thousand dollars in liberty bonds to pay off debts of the Republican National committee in the 1920 campaign, will be investigated this week at the senate oil inquiry.

Sinclair has testified he gave "about $27,000" to the Republicans but the rumor has persisted that he made much larger and other contributions through his friends and business associates. Thus far but one of these gifts has been traced, a $75,000 offer of liberty bonds used to pay off a Republican debt with the Empire Trust company, of New York.

The senate public lands committee will meet again Thursday and officers of four great banking institutions have been subpoenaed. The banks named were the Continental and Commercial National of Chicago, the Chase National and Liberty National of New York, and the First National of Boston. The subpoenas ordered officers of the banks to bring along all their records relating to loans made to the Republican National committee.

Senator Thomas J. Walsh (D), of Montana, the senate's famous "oil prosecutor," ordered the subpoenas issued after receiving some private information. It was reported, as a result, that Walsh had learned these banks loaned money to the Republican National committee in the 1920 campaign, which was later repaid through liberty bonds.

New York's "Four Hundred" Is Now "Forty Thousand"

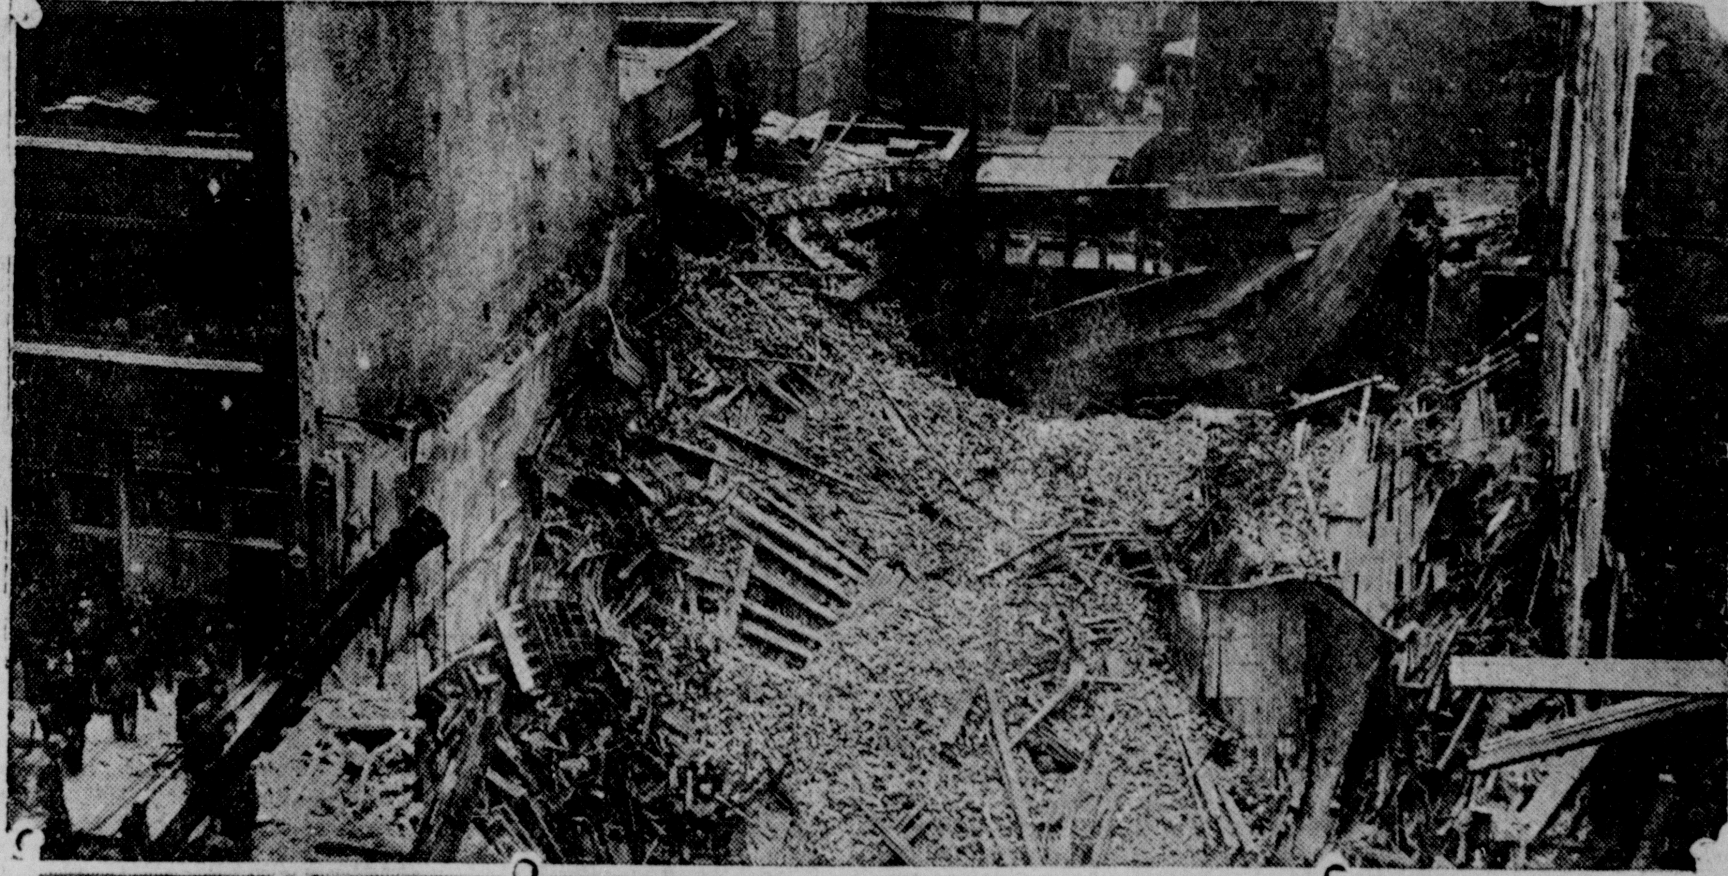

NEW YORK, Feb. 20—(INS)—The "four hundred," as the elite in New York society once were termed, is now the "forty thousand."

The current issue of "Club members of New York," a semi-official index of Gotham's bluebloods, containing the names of more than 40,000 members of 45 "smart" clubs in the metropolitan area. The book reveals that the city's "champion clubmen" are General Cornelius Vanderbilt, Harry Payne Whitney and Clarence H. Mackay. Each is a member of sixteen clubs. J. P. Morgan has membership in fourteen.

XENIA, O., Feb. 20—(INS)—Telephone and electric light circuits were being repaired here today after a Sabbath day fire which brought damage estimated at $70,000.

STILL SEEKING VICTIMS OF SUBWAY CAVE-IN

Workers are combing through the ruins of two three-story buildings that crashed with a thundering roar into a New York city subway excavation, seeking the bodies of other victims of the accident, in which it is known that two men were killed outright. The complete ruination of the houses is evidenced by a glance at the picture, showing how they were literally "smashed to firewood."

Further Decrease In Prices Of Food Made In January

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20—(INS)—The retail cost of food decreased in price slightly in January. A decrease of more than 2½ per cent since January, 1927, and an increase of 58 per cent since January, 1913, the department of labor announced today.

Fresh eggs showed the largest decrease in January, amounting to 6 per cent. Fourteen other food articles dropped in price, including pork chops, 5 per cent; bacon, lard, flour and oranges, 2 per cent; butter, oleomargarine, rice, canned tomatoes, prunes and bananas, 1 per cent.

SELECTION OF DELEGATES IS NOW GOING ON

Four States Begin This Week to Choose Representatives at Conventions.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20—(UP)—With one Democratic candidate stumping the country and five Republicans vigorously in the field for battle, actual work is beginning for selection of delegates to the June nominating conventions. In four states—Illinois, North Dakota, Ohio and New Hampshire—machinery is being set under way this week to nominate the men who will choose the presidential candidates for both parties at Kansas City and Houston.

District delegates are required to file in Illinois today and in Ohio and New Hampshire Friday. In North Dakota Tuesday men are to be named for a state convention which will select the delegation.

Legal difficulties have arisen in Illinois which may prevent holding of the Illinois primary April 10. Candidates were supposed to have filed there Feb. 10, but the petitions were not formally made public because of injunction proceedings.

While this first selection work is being done, there is marked activity on all fronts, with prospects of a highly important political week.

County Committee Chairmen at Logan Designate Other
Democrat Delegates.

James M. Borror, of Ashville, and M. A. Daugherty, of Lancaster, were designated delegates to the Democratic national convention at Houston, Tex., from the Eleventh Ohio district at a meeting of county central committee chairmen at Logan, on Saturday.

Alternates endorsed are Miss Maude Watterson, of Logan, and Robert Polin, of Chillicothe. The meeting, which was called by State Central Committeeman Henderson, was attended from Pickaway county by Attorney I. F. Snyder, of Circleville, who carried the proxy of Dr. A. L. Stump, of Derby, the county chairman, who was confined to his home by illness.

The other counties represented at the meeting were Ross, Hocking, Fairfield and Perry.

BODY BROUGHT TO HOME OF BROTHER

Mrs. J. F. Fausnaugh Dies at Residence in Jamestown—
Funeral to Be Monday.

Mrs. J. F. Fausnaugh died Saturday morning at 2:15 o'clock at her home in Jamestown. She was born Sept. 18, 1882, the daughter of Jacob Martin and Susanna Young. She is survived by three children at homes, Mary, Lester and Mabel.

The body was brought to the home of her brother, Benton Fausnaugh in Stoutsville on Monday morning at 8 o'clock.

The funeral in charge of H. E. Defenbaugh, funeral director, will be held in the Lutheran Church of Stoutsville at 2 p. m. Monday, with Rev. J. M. Wenrich, preaching the funeral sermon. Burial will be in Maple Hill cemetery at Stoutsville.

BULLET IN BRAIN; LIVES 11 MONTHS

URBANA, O., Feb. 20—(INS)—After living 11 months with a bullet lodged in her brain, Mrs. Bessie Gillespie, 58, of Columbus, died here today at the home of her parents. She had been unconscious for the past week.

Mrs. Gillespie was shot accidentally March 28, 1927, by her husband, according to police reports, while he was cleaning a pistol in their home. The injury left her paralyzed, though conscious.

CLEVELAND, O., Feb. 20—(INS)—Cleveland and northern Ohio today were in the grip of a cold wave, with the mercury hovering close to zero.

Four deaths here were attributed to the near-blizzard, two from exposure and two from traffic.

Fire department officials said there were more fire companies out at one period during the last last thirteen years. Three extra-alarm fires, fanned by high winds and causing property damage of approximately $55,000 were recorded.

LINDBERGH TO FLY OVER MAIL ROUTE

ST. LOUIS, MO., Feb. 20—(UP)—A milestone in the progress of the United States air-mail service was reached today with the scheduled flight of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh over his old St. Louis-to-Chicago route.

Upwards of 100,000 separate pieces of mail—a record-making consignment aboard six planes here and at Springfield and Peoria, Ill., as a tribute to "slim" Lindbergh's temporary return to the service. The good-will ambassador will personally fly a new travel-air whirlwind air-mail plane delivered here yesterday, but during the flight to Chicago he is expected to change ships to "give the Lindbergh touch" to each piece of mail.

HICKMAN TRIAL STARTS

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 20—(INS)—Taking of testimony in the trial of William Edward Hickman and his former accomplice, Welby Hunt, on charges of murdering C. Ivy Johns, was expected to begin today, following announcement by Hickman's attorneys that the present tentative jury is acceptable to them.

LAWYERS MAKE CLOSING PLEAS BEFORE COURT

Murder Trial of Colored Defendant Reaches Its Final Stages.

Holding the deliberate pace that has marked its entire course, the trial of Walter Brown, also known as James Flint, colored, Monday went into the 11th day of its existence and moved slowly through its concluding phases. He is charged with first degree murder in connection with the fatal shooting of John Henry Hull on Nov. 14, 1927.

The case will not reach the jury until Tuesday morning as all of Monday was being devoted to the arguments of the opposing counsel before the jurors.

Friday afternoon's witnesses testified chiefly in rebuttal for the state and added but little to the huge mass of evidence that has been presented during the trial. There was no court Saturday.

Arguments Start
The presentation of testimony and evidence concluded, the arguments of counsel started at 10 o'clock Monday morning when Prosecutor E. A. Brown made the opening review of the state's case for the jurors. He was followed by Thomas J. Henick, one of the defense lawyers, who reviewed the circumstances of the events leading up to the killing from the defense standpoint.

The arguments were preceded by Judge Clarence Curtin giving the jury five special charges covering the law concerning alibis and the testimony of character witnesses. Snyder Continues
Monday afternoon, Attorney Irvin F. Snyder continued the defense argument and he was followed by Judge J. N. Abernethy, who spoke for the state in rebuttal. The prosecution and the defense were each allowed a total of three hours for argument.

Tuesday morning each side will be given two minutes in which to make a closing statement to the jurors; Judge Curtin will make his final charges and then the jury will retire to determine the fate of Walter Brown.

OSCAR NEWMAN IS CLAIMED BY HEART ATTACK

Former Supreme Court Judge
And Native of Portsmouth
Dies Suddenly.

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 20—(UP)—Oscar W. Newman, former justice of the Ohio Supreme Court, died suddenly from heart disease at the Columbus Athletic club last night. Newman became ill shortly after eating dinner and summoned Dr. Charles E. Turner, a friend, to treat him. The former justice died while the physician was enroute to the club.

Newman was a son of the late George O. Newman, Portsmouth, O., lawyer. He was a graduate of Kenyon college, and was elected to the supreme court bench in 1912. He was defeated for reelection in 1918.

Mrs. Newman was visiting their daughter, Mrs. Paul Kellogg, in Champaign, Ill., when Newman died.

Funeral arrangements were held in abeyance pending her return.

2 LOSE LIVES IN TRACTION WRECK

ELYRIA, O., Feb. 20—(UP)—An inquiry was begun here today into the cause of a head-on collision between a Cleveland Southwestern passenger traction car and a baggage car which resulted in the death of two persons and the injury of five others.

The wreck occurred at Stop 84 near the Elyria Country Club. Those killed were Walter S. Hoppe, 35, Elyria, motorman of the passenger car, and Mrs. J. W. Fowler, 35, of Oberlin, O.

FINAL SESSION IS STARTED AT CUBAN CAPITAL

Peace and Amity Mark Pan-American Meeting Despite Differences.

HAVANA, Feb. 20 — (INS) — With the United States delegation highly pleased with the results, among which are included four positive important achievements of the conference as a whole, the sixth Pan-American conference embarked upon its final session today.

Although some bitterness on the part of several Latin-American states was obvious and expected, the conference began its last day with peace and amity as definite, tangible evidence of its sessions which, during the course of the gathering, have surged from routine dullness to meetings surcharged with fiery oratory and diplomatic brilliance.

The question of intervention, regarded from the outset as a fire-charger with fuse split, has been shelved for further discussion.

Among other less conspicuous but highly important achievements of the conference, these four stood out today as paramount:

1. The declaration for obligatory arbitration and the agreement to meet in Washington for the negotiation of a general treaty.
2. The adoption of a Pan-American aviation treaty.

3. The great strengthening of the Pan-American union by putting it on a firm basis as a non-political agency of continental solidarity.

4. Important steps forward in the codification of international law.

The plenary session today was expected to ratify the projects on arbitration and the Pan-American union.

MEMORY

Tis the aged that enjoy the thoughts that memory brings—

Yes—old age is surely the golden time—

Memory takes us back to the joys we used to know. We see the poppy fields and orange trees in bloom.

We see the pine covered mountains capped with snow—

Again we hear the ocean's waves beating upon the rocks.

We watch the graceful Gulls that circle round in flocks—

We see the young folk in the surf, while we enjoy the shore.

Memory carries us back to the happy days of yore—

We enjoy the simple things that memory brings—

A note of music at summer's eve—or a bird that sings—

An old-fashioned flower-like mother's word, or some trifling thing.

A child's merry laugh—or a wee lad with kite and string.

We love the happy twilight hour when heart with heart delights to blend.

The fireside—this happy bower—A cheery book and the wife—our life long friend.—ANON.

commissions will be given on April 14, absolutely free to ambitious citizens of this section of the country it will be quickly seen that it is indeed the long-looked for golden opportunity of a lifetime. It's the biggest thing that ever happened to Pickaway and adjoining counties. In order to share richly in the awards to be given it is but necessary that those interested devote but a little of their spare time to the work of selling subscriptions to the Herald and Union Herald, a very pleasant occupation at all times. Just stop and ponder for an instant the magnitude of the proposition. A $1,375 Buick Sedan, a $730 Chevrolet, and other costly prizes are to be handed out freely to six hustlers in this community. It surely is worth the effort of the busiest and most ambitious people in the country. The best thing about the whole proposition is that if you work throughout the whole campaign and then fail for a prize, you will be paid a commission of ten percent on all you collect on subscriptions. This makes it a sure thing proposition and one that you can not fail to make good on.

Credits are given for every subscription to The Herald and Union Herald. Get subscriptions anywhere; both renewals and new subscriptions count. Get a receipt book, go to your people and sell them a subscription. That is all the information necessary in order to win.

When considering entering the big campaign, keep in mind one thing. This is not a "chance" proposition, but a strictly business proposition in the highest sense of the word, a business offer that every up-to-date business man in Circleville and other points will heartily endorse. The winner of the Buick Sedan will make an average of $165 per week for the length of time the campaign lasts. Not a half bad proposition, is it? Few business men anywhere in the moderate lines will average that money for the first few weeks. Here is a real proposition and one that no one can afford to let pass.

An Explanation
The question has been asked if regular correspondents to the Herald or Union Herald would be eligible to enter the prize campaign. We wish to state that Rule No. 3, which states that no salaried employee of the Circleville Publishing Co., or close relative of the same, will be allowed to participate, applies only to employees of the Herald or Union Herald working in or about the office. Therefore, any regular correspondent is perfectly eligible to enter and participate as a candidate.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

May Lose $24,000,000

Doris Duke, 15-year-old daughter of the late James B. Duke, tobacco king, may have $24,000,000 sliced off her fortune because a Newark, N. J., court has awarded that sum to George D. Haskell, Boston engineer, in a suit against the estate. Doris, the richest girl in the world, may even lose $24,000,000 if Haskell succeeds in getting triple damages. However, she'll still have enough to get by on, as her total fortune is $150,000,000.

HORSE AND MULE ON PRICE UPSWING

Fewer Colts Being Foaled and Demand May Soon Overtake Supply, Forecast

Horses and mules are disappearing from Ohio farms at a greater rate than from the farms of the nation as a whole, according to the Rural Economics Department of the Ohio State University. Taking the United States as a whole, the number of horses and mules on farms on January 1, 1928, was 20.3 per cent less than on January 1, 1920, while in Ohio the decrease had been 31.8 per cent in the same period.

Prices for horses and mules, the rural economists point out, have been unusually low for the past eight years, but on January 1 of this year were 5 per cent above those of January 1, 1927, in the United States, and 6 per cent above the Ohio price of the year previous.

"Since the war," says a statement from the department, "demand for work animals has materially decreased, and the increased breeding caused by high prices from 1910 to 1915 has left an oversupply. Automobiles, trucks and tractors have taken the place of many horses and there is a mechanical power for horse power both in town and on the farms."

"However, during the past three years, only about half as many colts have been foaled annually as in 1919. The number foaled has been about enough to maintain 11 million horses and mules, which is little more than half as many as we had on the farms in the United States on January 1, 1928."

"Apparently, demand for work animals is about to overtake the supply. If the increase in the prices of horses and mules experienced during the close of 1927, continues in 1928, we will probably see rising prices again. Since 1911 these prices have been in the longest decline since the Civil War."

Over-Idealized Husbands Are Apt to Go Philandering

CLINGING VINES SAP STRENGTH OF OAKS

Men Who Get Nothing But Adulation From Their Wives Often Go Afield to Seek the Saucy Flapper.

By DR. LOUIS E. BISCH

LOVE changes a woman in many ways. Or, perhaps, one had better say that love brings out woman's inherent and natural traits more fully than any other experience.

Among the most pronounced of these hidden traits is the desire to be a "clinging vine." I know there are women who would deny the truth of this statement hotly. They would claim that not all women, by any manner of means, possess the innate desire to bend to man's will and be subservient to him.

Is it not a fact, nevertheless, that the woman in love really likes to look up to, and respect, her beloved?

Has any marriage ever been successful where the woman was the acknowledged superior of the man? By successful I do not mean escape from the divorce court. By successful I mean specifically a love match in which the outpouring and satisfaction of feminine emotion is possible to the fullest extent.

Was there ever a feminine woman who, deep down in her heart, did not want to be proud of her unquestionably superior male partner? Yet, in this very tendency to be subservient lies danger.

Wives should bear in mind that, although the protective instinct of man is a tremendous incentive in making him do and dare in her behalf, too much genuflection weakens instead of strengthens his desires.

A little of the clinging-vine attitude flatters the male and swells his opinion of himself. And such a little is good for him, for it gives him confidence and makes him bold and self-assured to fight life's battles in behalf of his beloved.

But, like an appetizing, stimulating hors d'oeuvre, the little can very easily become too much. Then the clinging vine becomes a cloying, domineering wife. Man requires stimulus, but he also requires rebuffs. In fact, his rebuffs are the greatest of all stimuli.

The best diet contains a certain amount of roughage. In like manner man needs a degree of roughness in his emotional diet.

Man, who always "Yes Johns" him, who always sympathizes, who always listens and follows and never opposes, who forever looks up to her husband and surrenders, who is utterly flawless and faultless, soon bores him to extinction. Women who are forever sweet and kind and good get on his nerves.

So often one hears of these perpetually model wives losing their husbands. They complain bitterly because they have played the game honestly and squarely. They cannot understand how some "silly, trifling flapper" could possibly have tricked the man whom they have always known possessed a first-rate logical, reasoning mind.

Desire for variety. The urge to conquer afresh. Too much acquiescence and docility. These are the usual motivating factors when men stray.

Cling close to the time, but don't forever stick fast! Don't stifle the developing and growing power of the man around whom you have entwined your arms as well as your love.

Every sensible man knows his own shortcomings, and to find himself continually overidealized makes him disdainful of his partner's good sense.

Companionship, a dash of coquetry, a little interest, variety—these form an emotional cocktail that never warms a man. He likes to be considered a hero, of course. But he wants to be a hero in the eyes of the woman who is at least some justification for the woman of his choice clinging to him.

It is a mistake to make a man feel that he could not get rid of his clinging vine even with a hatchet.

A Fashion Model's Diary

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

She Discusses Youthful Evening Frocks.

"MADAME, let me see some thing in evening models for my daughter," said Mrs. Cordice, entering the shop with her young daughter, Julie.

"Very well, Mrs. Cordice," replied Madame. "Helene, tell Grace to model our 'jeune fille' evening frocks."

Whereupon, Helene entered the models' room and said with a grin, "Grace, show some 'S. S. and G.' evening dresses for Julie Cordice."

"I knew exactly what she meant—'S. S. and G.' standing for the 'Sweet, Simple and Girlish' type of dress. Modeling it has always been a frightful bore to me."

"I modeled several of our most tame and poitely girlish frocks. I could see a storm brewing in back of Julie Cordice's eyes. I know she wanted to tear every evening dress from the rack."

"No," she said darkly, after we had gone through our entire stock of youthful models. "I don't like any of them. Mother, as a matter of fact, I'm rather tired of going to proms and hops looking as though I were tarbly grown up for thirteen. What I want is an evening dress, you know."

"I smiled in sympathy, Mrs. Cordice blushed. She had probably been dreading that statement. She is the type that would like to keep her children in the cradle in order to retain a Baby Peggy age herself."

"Madame," I said eagerly, "I believe our new model satin gown, please Miss Cordice, may I model it?"

And right there, the problem was met and mastered. The frock was youthful enough to please Mrs. Cordice and just sophisticated enough to delight Julie. It was simply made, of heavy, salmon-colored moire satin, with a lovely, perky drape caught in at the hip with a few crystal clusters. Julie's eyes danced with delight, and another sale went on the records.

The Hairpin Returns -- By Fanny Darrell.

WITH what paeans of thanksgiving was the hairpin relegated to regions now unvisited by the gods! Locks became free and untrammelled and were exposed to the play of winds to be tossed about in graceful disarray. Mildly breathed a sigh of relief as she cut loose her short curls to the kisses of the gentle breezes. But dame fashion is as fickle as the winds. The little hairpin was not to be entirely suppressed. It is gradually reinstating itself in my lady's favor. Again, one may see it adorning the lovely hair of the beautiful maidens. Indeed it is becoming a very decorative as well as useful accessory to my lady's toilette.

Food, Headaches and Air Are Related

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

United States Senator from New York. Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

PERHAPS there is no ailment so common as headache. Never a day passes but some friend or acquaintance will say, "I have a terrible headache." There are very few persons in the world who do not have an occasional headache. There are many causes for headache. Perhaps the chief ones are indigestion in diet and late hours. Of course, there are other causes—eye-strain, over fatigue and failure of elimination.

The lesson everybody should learn is how to eat and what to eat. To eat regularly, to eat simple food, and not to eat between meals, are pieces of advice which it should be unnecessary to give to sane and sensible people. But, it is hardly worth while to give this advice because the temptation of appetite is too strong for the average person. The advice is always well received and invariably agreed to, but it is straightaway forgotten or disregarded.

A little while ago I asked a charming lady what she thought was the cause of her headache. Her reply was that in order to get plumper she had been eating richer food. Upon hearing this answer I looked materially increased her intake of food without, at the same time, giving herself an extra supply of pure air.

Today I have dealt with but one sort of headache. On another occasion we will discuss other forms. I want to say this in conclusion, however, that the food we eat, regard a headache which persists, or a headache which occurs every two or three days. There is some underlying cause for this headache and it should be discovered.

I have no desire to alarm you, of course, but don't permit yourself to suffer with headache when by a little care of this added food.

BIBLE THOUGHT

PRESERVATION AND DESTRUCTION — The Lord preserveth all them that love him; but all the wicked will he destroy.—Psalm 145:20.

PRAYER—Lord, our souls wait on Thee and in Thy word do we hope.

Stimulating Enterprise.

Enterprise is a great factor in business. People may be faithful and accurate up to a certain point, and yet may so lack enterprise that they produce no prosperity for themselves and those who depend on them.

We need enterprise not merely in promoting manufacturing industries but on this factor efficient distribution of commodities depends. Unless a community has enterprising retail stores, catering to the needs of the people in an aggressive way, the service of those stores is likely to be mediocre.

The success of an enterprising dealer, however, depends on how far the people will take an interest in his enterprises. Let us suppose that he sees a chance to obtain some very fine and substantial lot of goods at a low price. It takes considerable money to go into the deal, and he takes some risks on it. Everything depends on whether he can work off those goods promptly. If he has to carry them over to the next season, he is likely to lose money. But if he can turn them over at once, he makes money, and he gives the public an excellent opportunity.

It has been one of the great services of newspaper advertising, that it provides the means by which the enterprising store can carry on such enterprises and make good. Such stores buy these lots in large quantities, and they depend on newspaper advertising to point out the opportunity to the people, and get the public backing for their enterprise. If they could not reach the public through the newspapers, they could not probably sell those goods within a reasonable time. Thus they would miss the chance to enlarge their trade, and the public would miss the opportunity. But advertising makes enterprise possible, and secures its benefits for the people.

Honest Tax Returns.

Before the United States provided for a tax on incomes, skepticism was expressed as to the ability of the government to collect this tax. It was claimed that a great many persons would fraudulently avoid this payment.

Some forms of property are exempt from this taxation, so that many are able to escape this tax to a large extent or entirely, and yet they have complied with the law. If they choose to put their money in tax exempt bonds, they have the right to do so. If the people object to this form of avoiding taxes, they can cease to allow the privilege of exemption from taxation.

According to the tax returns of 1924, less than seven per cent of the population filed income returns. It seems incredible that the number of people having incomes calling for a return was so small as this. It would look as if many persons who under the law should file returns, had failed to do so, either by ignorance, or by a feeling that they could safely dodge it.

Some persons who might like to evade the law are restrained by the severe penalties. Anyway this tax is a very effective means of getting a large sum of money for the government, and it raises the vast amounts needed to pay for the war and its incidental costs, more easily than they could be had in any different way.

A great many people may cheat the government in small ways in these returns without being discovered. Some day when they least expect it a government deputy may descend on them and discover their fraud. Considering what enormous benefits the people get from their government, they should take pride in making honest returns. It is remarked that people are inclined to underestimate their receipts and overestimate their expenses in making these returns. It would show a better spirit to err in the opposite direction. Cheating Uncle Sam defrauds a mighty good friend.

The Cause of Divorce.

A committee of the Rhode Island legislature which has been studying the problem of divorce, thinks the increased number of such separations is the result of the feminine movement, and the changing attitude of women toward marriage.

In the days when men were considered the heads of the household, the women used to feel they had to submit to anything the men did. But now if he men do things they do not like, they do not feel bound to them.

Such a separation often comes from frivolous reasons. But quite as often it comes because the men have misbehaved themselves. The women will not lie down and submit to it like a tawny dog, the Crime Reduced.

According to the report of the New York police commissioner, the number of serious offenses dropped in that city from 8,137 in 1925 to 6,783 in 1927. However, the smaller number shows that a lot of dangerous crooks are still loose.

The community should not rest satisfied while any such number of desperate villains are at large. They should support the laws of the land with fully equipped and manned police departments, and severe penalties for crime. But the principal protection against crime is found in giving boys such wholesome ideas that a crooked path has no attractions for them.

Word comes from Paris that women will wear ruffles. Anything else?—Chicinnati, O., Times Star.

The RAMBLER

By NORMAN W. RALSTON

IT'S RAINING

AND now
It's
Raining out
Today
And I have stolen
Far away
Within the corners
Of my room
Where I await a
Dismal doom
For rainy days
Somehow are sad
And make a fellow
Far from Glad—
There is no sense
In rain,
It seems,
When rain disturbs
Your happy
Dreams—
Communion with my Soul I hold
Although I'm feeling
Far from bold;
And rainy days bring
Me to mind
Perhaps I haven't
Been so kind
To fellowmen, I've
Fallen flat
As useless as an
Alley cat,
My soul treks forth
To view itself,
On rainy days
I'm just a
Pelf—

And what we mean to say
Is,
Don't hide your soul
From your own gaze
Or you'll be Living
In a haze,
There's work for every Man to do
If to himself
He will be true;
On rainy days
You'll seek your
Goal
If first you'll Find
You've found your Soul.

We seem to have started something with our expressed desire in a recent four-line jingle to become a cat. Here's two contributions that have been brought, via Uncle Sam, from Waverly (O.). Here goes:

If I could live a life illustrious,
As do all men of fame,
I'd choose the most illustrious
And Lindy'd be his name.
—L. D. Beekman.

If I could live a life illustrious,
As does the editor's cat,
I'd choose to live like Lincoln
But not split rails at that.
—R. L. B.

Boy Ryder must wake up in the morning with a smile when he finds that Mrs. Bob reads his paragraphs and actually seems to find joy in them.

THE BLACKBIRD

In the far corner,
Close by the swings,
Every morning
A blackbird sings.

His bill's so yellow,
His coat's so black,
That he makes a fellow
Whistle back.

Ann, my daughter
Thinks that he
Sings for us two Especially.
—Humbert Wolfe.

Some of the things that we don't seem to understand in this world, we seem to appreciate more.

People are funny. We know a bachelor who thinks marriage a lottery and won't take a chance, and he just bought a used car.—Jake Falstaff in Akron Beacon-Journal.

Buying a used car is not such a permanent transaction.—Ema Spencer in Newark Advocate.

And, besides, a car may kick but it can't talk back.—Adam Breede in Hastings, Neb. Tribune.

And once in awhile you find it runs out of gas and gives you a rest, too.

When a Man Loves

By ALLIE LOWE MILES

Copyright 1927, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.
Don Barrymore in "WHEN A MAN LOVES" is a Warner Bros. Picture
Adaptation of this novel.

SYNOPSIS
Fabien, good and handsome youth of France, trains for the priesthood; but meets and loves Manon Lescaut, beautiful orphan, who is coveted by hideous Count Ravoire. Fabien saves her and carries her off to Paris. Circumstances force her to surrender to Ravoire. She rejoins Fabien, and they live so extravagantly that Fabien is forced to capitalize a genius for cards. The King plays Fabien at cards for Manon, accuses him of cheating. Manon is sent to be deported. Fabien kills Ravoire, and follows the prison caravan to Havre.

Fabien had rushed up to Manon and put his arms about her protectingly. They felt lost and out of place. All the elken glory of magnificent clothes and priceless jewels that had been theirs the night before at the Duc de Richelieu's salon had been literally stripped from them, leaving only two very tragic young people who had lost everything except their love for each other. They did not even own the clothes they wore—Fabien's suit was borrowed from Ti-berge and Manon's dress was a uniform from the Magdalen.

Passion and loyalty had been the indirect cause of all their misfortune, yet happily enough it was the only thing that survived every ordeal.

Money, that had once seemed so vital to their happiness, now meant nothing. There was not a single coin between them, nor did it matter. In the excitement and stress of the moment Fabien had left his money on the card table at the Duc's salon, but if all his winnings had been in a sack at their feet on the wharf they would have been useless.

The only thing that concerned them was separation, and although Fabien had bolstered up Manon's courage by saying he was sailing with her for America, he knew there was not a chance in the world of his being able to board the deportation ship.

Within the hour Manon would be sent to exile, alone, and it was Fabien's lot to remain and suffer the consequences of opposing the King and murdering the Comte.

CHAPTER XXI

Moorred to the end of the wharf was the grim little sailing vessel that was destined to carry the exiled women across the Atlantic to the penal colony in New Orleans, Louisiana.

It was an annual voyage and the passage required two long, agonizing months. However, the miserable accommodations and hardships did not prevent His Honor, the Governor of the distant Colony, from making the voyage in company with Synnelet, a favorite nephew, for the express purpose of selecting for themselves the most attractive of the condemned women.

While the ship was being loaded for the sail, two men leaned against the barrels on deck and calmly, yet with decided interest and speculation, looked over the chained women to see if they were particularly promising.

The Governor was about fifty, respectable in appearance and with a good face—that reflected an understanding and reliable character. Synnelet was younger by twenty years and his features were decidedly those of a sensualist. He was not married and had no desire to be.

After sizing the women up for some time the gaze of both men returned to Manon.

"At last they have sent us a woman worth looking at!" exclaimed Synnelet with a whistle of delight. "I see the one you mean—but do you notice that her affection is already bestowed upon a young man?" The Governor saw Fabien holding Manon in his arms.

"What difference does that make? He will be left here, I shall take his place and she will be more interesting for the experience."

After the manner of the women these men were chained together and driven onto the ship like animals. There were convicts, thieves, rogues and murderers among them. All undesirable characters that were being stored away in the unspeakably dirty hold of the ship like so many sacks of coal, to be dumped at the penal colony in America.

The armed guards chained these men to the ship's walls with scarcely enough room between them to move. The only light and air they were to have came through the close iron grating in the floor of the deck above. A terrible fate for any man, no matter how great his crime.

After the men had been securely locked away the Governor gave instructions for the women to be brought aboard. They were a pitiful sight, but the guards had neither mercy nor compassion for the unfortunate girls or their families and roughly brought the farewells to an abrupt end.

Manon clung so tightly to Fabien that he was pushed along with her up to the gang plank before the guards realized what they had done.

"Clear out of here!" ordered the most burly fellow, addressing Fabien.

"There is time," he stalled, dreading to let Manon go.

"Yes, and this is it." The guard grabbed Manon roughly by the arm and pulling her away said, "Now, nothing's holding you—go."

Fabien's face turned a ghastly white, he set upon the guard with clenched fists, but was pushed aside and immediately pinioned by two other uniformed men whose duty it was to preserve order.

Sobbing piteously, Manon was pushed away from her lover. Their dreams of happiness were again shattered.

Synnelet, still watching Manon from the deck, called to his uncle, "That's the one for me, all right. She appears to be a faithful little soul." He was generous enough to admire traits in others that were foreign to his own nature.

"You shall have your choice, my boy." The Governor gave his nephew a fond smile.

Synnelet noticed that Manon was in a state of collapse as she and the other women were pulled and pushed across the gang plank. It did not suit his plans for her to be too rudely treated and he hastened to speak with the guard in charge.

"Be gentle with this girl and see that she is not hurt," he requested. The guard winked knowingly, but paid no attention to the suggestion.

Not for a moment had Fabien taken his eyes from Manon since she was torn from his arms and he made prisoner by the guards. He saw Synnelet, apparently a privileged character, speak in her behalf and it nearly drove him insane. He thought—she is being taken away from me again, I am powerless to follow, and even before the ship pulls anchor another man is waiting to annoy her!

As if in a dream Fabien saw the sailors scurrying about on deck preparing to get under way. The Captain was shouting commands. The crowd of sea friends and relatives gathered about the wharfhead waving a last farewell to their loved ones as the girls and women leaned over the railing, looking back with regret and longing. They stood quite close together in a long line, because they were still bound together by the cumbersome iron chain.

Synnelet was directly behind Manon appraising her with a satisfied smile!

The ship's anchor was weighed. The bulk moved slowly away from the wharf. Manon was being taken away! ! ! !

Fabien wanted to curse. His mind was in a mad whirl. He seemed to hear Manon calling, calling to him for help, and he felt so small and helpless as he just stood there watching her move away from him. Suddenly a sound of galloping horses penetrated his consciousness and their arrival caused a great commotion at the land end of the wharf. On recognizing the King's guard and men from the Magdalen Prison, Fabien's captors sensed something unusual and, eager to be in the midst of the excitement, they released their charge and ran back to find out what had brought these men to Havre.

JUST IN CASE

by Dave Keene

Talking moving pictures in the home from the ordinary radio can be expected as the next development in the field of antennae, B. batteries and static. Any day you will be reading of them on the front page of the newspapers. Experiments are now being conducted in the Schenectady laboratories of the General Electric company. Toward those workrooms where miracles are accomplished the attention of the entire motion picture industry is being turned. It was when making inquiry as to the business that took a certain film executive to the east that I learned of his research. The radio motion picture device, as I have found out, is extremely simple, and can be added to any home set. A light, a lens and a rotating disk pierced with holes do the work. Light rays are changed into electrical impulses, sent through the air, received in your home, changed back into light, and there you are. Your loud speaker will recount for the spoken words that are synchronized with the action. Broadcasting of the talking pictures will be done from any central station. Perfection of the device is probably far in the future.

Esther Ralston's party an evening or two ago was a tremendous success. It was a "kid party." Johnny Hines came as Little Lord Fauntleroy. George Bancroft dressed as Huckleberry Finn. Frank Tuttle, lean and bespectacled director, forgot his Yale background, donned tights and wings and carried a little sign which read: "I've lost my story."

What is a motion picture star? To the layman a "star" is any motion picture player. In Hollywood he means something more. A star is a player of unusual acting ability whose name means more to the public than the title of any picture they may be playing in. For instance, for a star the billing will be: "Richard Dix in Sporting Goods." For a picture with featured players only the billing offers: "Beau Sabreur" with Gary Cooper, Evelyn Brent, etc.

Featured players play in support of stars—star in support of no one. Extras furnish atmosphere in the mob scenes. The caste system is strong in Hollywood.

THE MOVIE DICTIONARY

Track shot—One in which the camera itself moves.

Script—The scene schedule of a story from which the film is made.

Swing gang—The men who do the heavy work on a motion picture set.

In this Capital of Kleigs directors are supermen—a race apart. Producers and players alike expect them to accomplish the impossible. Young William Wellman was recently directing an aviation picture, "The Legion of the Condemned." To coach one especially important air sequence he strapped

News of the week from the studios: Reginald Denny himself is the author of his next picture a narra-

HOWE ABOUT?

By ED. W. HOWE

G. Bell Syndicate. WNU Service

You clamor for equality. Your natural chances in life are fifty-fifty. By behaving well, you can increase your chances to sixty, seventy, while the ill-behaved man's chances will be reduced to forty, or thirty.

Information, temperance, fairness, politeness, good work, good health, give you an advantage.

Everyone has a little disposition to rob the other fellow.

Rob him by behaving better than he behaves.

An editor in the East refers to me as an optimist pessimist. It is a good line. If you behave well, and work hard, be optimistic about results; you will seldom be disappointed. But if a town bum wants to borrow money of you, be pessimistic. If a rich man of no ability promises great results for his community, and offers stock for sale, be pessimistic. Pessimism wins often over optimism. I am ashamed to say so, but it is true.

"Can men keep up the old pace of gallantry toward the women?" Head women are worthy of it, and properly appreciative, but a lot of tough ones have grown up who deserve the police court rather than gallantry. Will it finally become necessary to revise gallantry and cut out the unworthy?

A man who is making money never runs away. It seems to be the rule that no matter how much a man thinks of a woman, he will not run away with her if he has to give up a job or business that is very profitable and in good condition.

I am often astonished at the number of clever people now living. Probably we have twenty to one, as compared to a hundred years ago. And as we know better, we should do better. Our trouble is not ignorance; it is carelessness, silliness, meanness, unfairness, all qualities that punish.

When a boy is sixteen and hasn't anything else he is pretty apt to have a girl.

Men have no opportunity to judge the wisdom of women; women are wisest when no men are around.

Sin is being poor, and a trouble to others; righteousness is taking care of yourself and helping others a little.

Women will never be satisfied with their rights until they have liberty to walk up to the best behaved of us, and sit us over the head; in no other way can they completely express their general disapproval of our sex.

'Twas Moses

George, Junior, age eleven, was viewing the Christmas toys with his mother. They stooped for a few minutes in front of a window that showed a moving Noah's ark. Young George was much intrigued by the comments of the onlookers. "Oh, mother!" he chuckled. "That old lady said 'Just look at Santa Claus!' She didn't know that's Moses!"

"TEA FOR THREE" IS SUAVE COMEDY

Cody and Aileen Pringle Prove to Be Screen's Best Fun-Making Stars.

Sophisticated farce, entertainment of that suave, delightful type that tickles the intelligence as well as the risibles, is promised at the Metropolitan theatre, when "Tea for Three," a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture starring Lew Cody and Aileen Pringle open a two-day engagement beginning Monday.

Adapted from the famous laughter-provoking stage success of Roi Cooper Megrue that delighted four continents during its world-wide tour, the film has retained all the pleasure of its old form and added several diverting touches to its triangle theme of jealous husband, fascinating wife and handsome friend.

When the busy husband cancels a luncheon engagement with his wife, she meets a friend, who steals her portrait and refuses to relinquish it unless she dine some evening at his apartment. How the husband discovers their tete-a-tete, and the wife regains the picture and the friend learns a thing or two about a lovely woman, provides an evening of exquisite mirth and amusement. There is a yacht party, a suicide pact and other unexpected complications.

Letters To the Editor

Editor, The Circleville Herald:—Why was Ohio the only state singled out in which Secretary Hoover has consented to make a contest for presidential delegates? Was not the real motive or object of those few who were so active in urging him to become a contestant in the Ohio primary against Senator Willis, nothing more or less, than to gain party control of Ohio politics?

How much more statesman-like it would have been, had Secretary Hoover turned a deaf ear to their urgent appeals instead of allowing himself to become a party to a matter which is responsible for factional dissension and strife which in all probability may be directly the result of him losing the much coveted nomination for President.

It seems improbable that Secretary Hoover should have concluded to tolerate the use of his name when practically the entire state organization is for Senator Willis. Before concluding, perhaps it would not be out of place to direct my remarks to Representative

Burton, relative to his part in this unfortunate and regrettable episode.

Representative Burton said, "I have been willing—as a matter of state pride and because of my strong attachment for Senator Willis—to support him for the presidential nomination in the first instance; and even for a longer time in case he should have such support outside the state as to make his nomination probable."

But instead of adhering to, and carrying out the declaration above cited, which he declared but recently in no uncertain terms in favor of Senator Willis' candidacy for President, is now raising the Confederate banner of opposition against the Senator who has always been his true friend and loyal supporter, and who not only suppressed his own ambition or aspiration as a presidential candidate in favor of Mr. Burton, but in addition thereto presented his name at the Chicago Convention, 1916, as Ohio's favorite son, in which was made the most memorable nominating speech, perhaps, ever delivered on such an occasion in this country. It seems strange, indeed, to be so ungrateful for favors rendered.

For homes without electricity, the Maytag is available with in-built gasoline motor.

EVERY day 1400 new Maytag owners in every section of the country are introduced to Wash-day Happiness—happiness because of washings done in less time, about one hour; happiness because of clothes washed beautifully clean without hand-rubbing.

The Maytag is the only washer with a non-breakable, cast-aluminum tub—the tub that keeps water hot for an entire washing, then empties and cleans itself.

Because of the silent, smooth-running, steel-cut gears, there is a remarkable absence of vibration, and vibration is a washer's greatest enemy.

Would you know wash-day happiness, try a Maytag. See the new soft Roller Water Remover with safety feed board and automatic tension adjustment—test and compare its many outstanding features.

FUGAZY CLAIMS FIRST OUTDOOR TITLE MATCH

RIVAL OF TEX TELLS PLANS FOR 3 BATTLES

Promoter Says He Will Have Canzoneri Meet Charley Phil Rosenberg.

By DAVIS J. WALSH
I. N. S. Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—Humbert J. Fugazy, the man who talks a great rivalry with Tex Rickard, emerged from the deep silences today to claim that he has virtually beaten Rickard to the first title match of the outdoor season. He says he has just about closed with Tony Canzoneri to depend his newly acquired featherweight championship against Charley Phil Rosenberg at Ebberts field, Brooklyn, on the night of May 3. This is claim No. 1.

Number two is that Mickey Walker has agreed to defend his middleweight title under the good signor's auspices against George Courtney, the Oklahoman; Rene de Vos, the Belgian; Maxie Rosenbloom, the French Canadian, or any candidate acceptable to the New York commission.

To Meet Hansen

Claim number three is that the winner of the Godfrey-Paulino fight on the coast will be brought east to meet Knute Hansen in a heavy-weight elimination contest at the polo grounds. Just what the survivor of this three-handed pinochle match is to do next. The good signor neglects to say. Nor does he go into details that might reconcile Paulino's adherence with the $8,000 controversy he and the good signor are indulging in at the moment. This is the only portion of the signor's proposed program that doesn't exactly add up right.

However, it may be that he won't need Paulino after Godfrey gets through with him.

There isn't any apparent reason, at that, for Canzoneri to desert Rickard, who gave Tony his chance. But, then, anything can happen in this sharp-shooters' game and very often does. Rosenberg, of course, will be glad to play ball on any proposition after being "on the ground" for a year. It isn't likely, either, that Rickard will want any part of the former bantamweight champion after being more or less confounded with that two-contract business that resulted in Rosenberg's suspension.

Ideal Fight Arena

As for Walker, there is little doubt that, if he fights here at all, it won't be for Rickard. Jack Kearns wouldn't do business with the latter if Tex gave him the box office concession.

Ebberts field, according to Fugazy, will be the ideal fighting arena when they increase its baseball seating capacity to 55,000, as they propose to do. But he is counting upon the Hansen versus the Godfrey-Paulino winner as his big shot and, therefore, only the polo grounds will do. He seems to be forgetting that Charley Stoneham plans to do some fight promotion of his own but then Charley very seldom spurns a night's rental; at least, no one ever caught him at it. Godfrey, Paulino and Hansen are the "outlaws" of Rickard's tournament. That is, they don't belong for some reason or none at all. Napoleon Dorval is another cast-off who might get into this declass event. Just for lack of nothing better to do.

They apparently are not going anywhere and so the signor thinks they might as well start as soon as possible.

HAHN PLANS NEW WINNING STREAK

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—(INS)—Lloyd Hahn, whose unbroken string of thirty-one victories was snapped by Ray Conger in Kansas City on Saturday night, will attempt to start another winning streak at the annual New York A. C. games here tonight.

Hahn will run in the Baxter mile in an effort to capture his second leg on the trophy. He will compete against Sidney Robinson, of Mississippi; Willie Sullivan, formerly of Georgetown; and J. J. Elliott, of North Carolina, hailed as the south's best mile.

If there had been as much action in the Dempsey-Tunney fight as there is in the fight to put on motion pictures of it, there would have been a knock-out in the second round. — Akron, O. Beacon Journal.

NINETEEN ARE TO COMPETE IN MUSHING RACE

Woman Driver Entered For First Time in Dog Sled Derby, Starting Today

QUEBEC, Feb. 20.—(INS)—Nineteen dog-mushers, including the first woman dog-sled racer to compete in Canada, will start in the eastern international dog-sled derby, which opens here today. The woman in question is the famous Mrs. E. P. Ricker, who has trained for several years in New England's shorter races for this 120-mile classic.

The race will last through today, tomorrow and Wednesday, each team traversing 40 miles daily. The ruling favorites are the 25-year-old Emile St. Godard, winner in 1925 and also last year, and Leonhard Seppala, 52-year-old hero of the serum dash in Alaska, who finished second last year.

St. Godard, having twice before won the Quebec derby, will permanently possess the gold cup if he wins this time. The cash prizes offered this year total $2,200, of which $1,000 goes to the winner, $300 to second place, $300 to third place, and $200 to fourth, and lesser prizes to the trailers.

The dark horse is 15-year-old Paddy Nolan, who ran fourth last year. If the going should be unduly difficult, this youngster's ability to scamper with his team will give him an advantage over all his elders; but even under normal conditions Paddy will give a good account of himself, for he has a new team this year.

JOCKEY RIDES SIX STRAIGHT WINNERS

HAVANA, CUBA, Feb. 20.—(INS)—Turf speculators who played Al Robertson's mounts were sporting healthy bankrolls today. After taking third place in the first race here yesterday, the little jockey brought his mount home in front in each of the next six races, tying the world's record.

Each of Robertson's winners paid good prices, ranging from 2 to 1, to 4 to 1.

Only six other jockeys ever have ridden six winners in one day.

Rio's Three Day Fun Fest At Peak Tonight

RIO DE JANEIRO, Feb. 20.—(UP)—Brazil's capital slept late this morning, after celebrating Sunday of the annual Carnival, but began to stir itself before noon in preparation for tonight's festivities.

Tonight's celebration is expected to bring the peak of popular gayety. Carnival ends tomorrow night with the parade of the Carnival club floats, but the population usually is too exhausted then to continue the celebration until daybreak, as will be done tonight. Carnival has been observed so far with the usual good order customary to the annual celebration. Accidents have been held to a minimum. Although approximately 1,000,000 people are taking part in the festival, drunkenness or disturbances are rare.

WINTER-PAULINO RACE, LATER

The dream of race fans, a totalisator for pari-mutuel betting machines which will show at a glance the prices on offer against each entry, has come true at last.

To the ingenuity of an English school-master, we are indebted for this machine, which has solved a problem the shrewdest of turf men believed insoluble.

One result of the invention may be to revolutionize racing in the inventor's country. Totalisators, as they are called in England, may replace bookmakers, to the satisfaction of everyone except the latter.

Oralists at last may be dispensed with, except for the benefit of those backers who prefer to gamble on the odds they can obtain rather than secure a fair starting price.

The object to pari-mutuel machines as operated at present has been that it is impossible for a better to learn the odds against the horse he wishes to back without running from one board to another, doing intricate sums. By the time the sum is finished, fluctuations in the odds have upset the calculations and rendered them useless.

Mr. E. M. Hamilton, formerly a mathematics master at Malvern College, who was employed in the Ballistics office of the British Admiralty during the World War, has invented and patented a "robot bookmaker" which overcomes just these difficulties.

On each of Mr. Hamilton's machines there is room for the prices against 40 starters, sufficient for any race.

Instead of showing how many tickets have been sold, as do our present pari-mutuel machines, the super-totalisator shows the prevailing odds against each entry. These figures change constantly with the flow of money wagered with the "iron men," but are always accurate and informative.

Moreover, winnings can be paid instantly after a race, since the invention automatically deducts the five percent, and registers the proper odds.

And the machine can be made so portable that only a few would be needed!

There seems at first glance to be one flaw in Mr. Hamilton's machine as far as its practicability is concerned.

It is so constructed that a backer can have his choice between the starting price or the prevailing odds at the moment he makes his wager.

A ticket can be stamped either starting price or with the odds of the moment.

I have not gone into this thing very thoroughly, but offhand, I should say that I could take $100 and a couple of strong elbows and break any "robot bookmaker" in the business.

In a two-horse race, $5 bet on Horse A and $45 on Horse B, would make the former an 8 to 1 shot. Then the bets reversed at the odds, the first bets having been made at starting price, would allow the gambler to have $45 at 8 to 1 on one horse, and $45 on the other at even money.

If you see what I mean?

Barber Seeks To Go

To French Chamber

PARIS, Feb. 20.—(UP)—Francois Albert, who was senator from the Vienne department and minister of education in a recent cabinet, is preparing his candidacy for the April general elections. His opponent is a socialist and a barber. M. Albert called on him the other day while the barber was shaving a customer.

"Glad to see you, Monsieur Albert," said he. "Of course we have lots of things to talk about."

Then he called to his wife who was in the kitchen:

"Marie, come out here and finish this customer."

Marie dropped her preparations for the evening meal, grabbed the brush and the razor and shaved the customer while her husband and the other candidate talked politics.

AUTO SPEED MARK MADE AT DAYTONA

LONDON, Feb. 20.—(INS)—British automobile circles in general and Major H. O. D. Seagrave, former record molder in particular, were most enthusiastic today over Captain Malcolm Campbell's feat at Daytona Beach, Fla., yesterday when he broke the world's automobile speed record.

Captain Campbell established the record of 206.95 miles an hour, thereby wresting the championship from Major Seagrave, who had driven his car at the rate of 203.79 miles an hour over the same stretch of beach.

"I am delighted to hear of Campbell's feat," Major Seagrave said. "I have always thought his car capable of beating my record with a decent margin."

"Campbell deserves all the credit he can get, for he had against him all the money and brains of the automobile world and in Frank Lockhart had America's strongest contender."

JOHN ABERNETHY WINNING JUMPER

In an indoor track meet at Cincinnati on Saturday night, John Abernethy, son of Mrs. Marie Abernethy, of West Franklin street, won the running high jump with a mark of 6 feet, 1 inch.

During the past season, Abernethy, who is captain of the track squad at St. Xavier college, made the record of 6 feet, 5 inches in the running high jump.

He will compete in the Olympic elimination games at Cincinnati this spring and is believed to have a good chance to make the American Olympic track team.

for some years, and their participation this year merits some praise, especially for the youngsters and their coaches, Miss Rector and Mr. Peck. Washington held the Ashville girls to a score of 8-4 the first half, but allowed them to get 21 points while they were getting 2 in the last half. Coach Irwin, Ashville, will have to meet the fast Monroe team Thursday night.

Atlanta Boys Win

Atlanta's poor showing in the first half of the game with Scioto was expressed well by one of her players at the close of the half when he said, "We can't play a good game of marbles tonight." Nearly five minutes of jockeying took place before K. Lamb was fouled and made good for the first point of the game. Miller's boys were able to work the ball to their end of the floor and take shots fourteen times before Evans succeeded in dropping one through as the quarter ended.

Evans got away the second quarter and dropped four more through, while McClure, a freshman, dropped in a short one, and two from the middle of the floor for Scioto. The half ended Atlanta 13, Scioto 7.

The second half opened, McClure was fouled and made good his two shots and added another long one from beyond the middle of the floor near the scorer's table. This made the score Atlanta 13, Scioto 11. Turner, Evans and Farmer got busy and made five baskets in quick succession, and snowed the Sciottians under. The fourth quarter featured good work on the part of Evans, while K. Lamb added four points for his team. Turner, Atlanta center, was off form in the shooting during the game.

Scioto Girls Lose

In the last game of the first round of the girls' tournament, Monroe, true to form, easily defeated the Scioto team 35 to 10. The Porter twins were unable to get the hang of the basket in the first half, laying many shots against the board that should have gone in. During the game however, Helen succeeded in eight field goals while Hazel made six. Brust accounted for one field goal in each half, and added two points by the foul route, while Helen added one more the same way. Trego played the best game for Scioto, while Johnson succeeded in tying her in points.

Monroe played easily and with confidence not often seen on a tournament floor. The team promises to make it warm for any team it meets, and it is hard to say just how much they have in store, for they did not have to extend themselves in this game. Mr. Bronner has a team that should come through.

Miss Lender coached the Scioto girls and shares with Miss Dean and Miss Rector, the honors of being the only lady coaches in the county.

Ashville Boys Win

After defeating Ashville both at Tarleton and Ashville, Saltcreek allowed the up-county team to run away with them in their first tournament game. Heath, Saltcreek center, was suffering with a bad boil on his neck, and Hart-

ranf, star forward, was suffering with cramps. This may have caused the team lay down in the second quarter after making point for point the first. The game promised to be interesting and many felt that Ashville would again meet defeat after Cloud and Hartman retaliated with two for Saltcreek. In the second quarter Hartman again came through with a basket that put them in the lead after McGlone had located. Boone came through and tied the score. McGlone ran wild and made two fielders and made good on one foul, the score at the half being Saltcreek 6, Ashville, 11. Cloud and McGlone broke loose the second half and scored at will.

In the last game of the week's session, Walnut girls easily out-pointed Jackson. Barr again starred under the basket for Walnut, and Allen scored longer shots at will. M. Ours and M. Finley played the best for Jackson. Walnut girls should now go through to the finals, and stand the best chance of giving Monroe a second point in this tournament. Heskett played a splendid game for Walnut at guard, doing much better than in the Saltcreek game. The game ended with Walnut having 27 points and Jackson 10.

Jackson Fights

The outstanding feature of Saturday's tournament was the

tal in accounting for nine of New Holland's points. Timmons did not play his usual game.

The score does not indicate the trend of the game. At the end of the first quarter New Holland led Jackson by three points with a score of 6-3. In the second quarter Jackson made point for point with their opponents. In the third quarter Jackson weakened and New Holland added five points to her lead. In the last quarter New Holland added 7 points while Jackson accounted for four. The game ended New

TWO MURDERERS PAY WITH LIVES

BELLEFOONTE, Pa., Feb. 20 — (UP)—Two negro murderers, of Philadelphia, Frank Arnold and Frank E. Lockett, were electrocuted here today at Rockview penitentiary.

Arnold was executed for the slaying of his common law wife, Lottie Arnold, Oct. 12, 1926.

Lockett was the sixth man to go to the electric chair within a year for slaying a Philadelphia policeman. Lockett shot and killed Patrolman Joseph E. Bell, the night of Dec. 11, 1926.

Paul Whiteman Likes the Toasted Flavor of Luckies—His Favorite Brand

"It was but recently, when I started to act as master of ceremonies with my band at the Paramount Theatre, that I realized how vital perfect voice condition was to a performer. I have always been a consistent smoker and fortunately, Lucky Strikes were my favorite brand. I like their toasted flavor and, best of all, I can smoke as often as I like, without fear of irritating my voice, which is becoming a great asset in my work."

Mr. Thornhill, coach for the New Holland team, sent in last year's team minus Curry, who quit school last fall. Their initial showing, after a perfect record within the county, was rather poor. In the first half they were able to make 30 open shots, mostly at close range, and landed only three of them. They boosted the ball under the basket eight or ten times during this half securing two more baskets in this manner.

Cook, who has a record in pre-tournament games of 110 points for this year, was only able to add two to his record. In this game, Dick as he did last year, was able to come through with some good shots keeping his team to the front. H. Vincent was instrumen-
